Mexico's Great Day
King George's 21st Year
Now the Day Is Over
Mr. Mellon Speaks

By Arthur Brisbane

YESTERDAY, May 5th, Cinco De Mayo, good Mexicans celebrated the victory that freed their country, forever, from European control.

Patriotic Mexicans (no nation is more patriotic) lifted their glasses in gratitude to the memory of the French defeat, establishing the fact that Mexico is for Mexicans.

Mexico's May 5th should make real Americans thoughtful, now that so many Americans seem eager to discard George Washington's teachings and join the European League of Nations or World Court, for instructions as to the management of the United States.

Mexicans will never make that mistake.

While the Mexicans were celebrating their important holiday, King George of England was celebrating the end of his 21st year as King. Only 17 English kings and queens have remained longer than 21 years on the throne.

King George has now equalled the term of William the Conqueror. His has been a different term. The Conqueror ruled. He suppressed many small kingdoms to make a big one, wiped out villages and farms to create vast deer parks.

Long after his death, late as the time of Henry the Second, an English workman moving from one parish to another in search of a job, without permission, was branded on his flesh with a red-hot iron.

King George has lived to see a workman, formerly in the coal mines, prime minister of England, and writing the speeches that the King delivers. "The address from the throne."

We may see changes as great here, we may even see the citizens themselves running the country, something we haven't seen yet.

George F. Baker, one of the most powerful workers in American business and finance, was buried yesterday. "Abide With Me" was sung and "Now the Day is Over."

Men of power, in the world that interested Mr. Baker, were there, Senator Dwight W. Morrow, just back from Sicily; Charles E. Mitchell, chairman of the National City Bank; Charles Evans Hughes, there were also railroad presidents. And their conversation about business after the funeral was none too cheerful.

Some that were too optimistic at the beginning of our slump are now taking a more solemn view, as though the doctor had said: "You have an inoperable cancer." We have, at the worst, a case of financial measles.

Mr. S. Forman, of Rochester, N.Y., who deals directly and successfully with the people in business, says: "We must take things as they come, working the harder when they don't come exactly as we want them. The man who is always a little hungry is healthier than the man who is never hungry. We have been stuffed with prosperity, having too much. Thinking and hard work will do us good."

Secretary Mellon, whose specialty is NOT talking, yesterday talked about business, for the first time since October, 1929, at a luncheon given to foreign bankers by American bankers.

You should read his speech in this morning's newspapers.

"We can't be cured by any quick and easy methods, or at anybody else's expense, and we ought to realize it.

"The world is passing through one of the most extensive depressions it has ever known.

"We should not lose our sense of perspective, this crisis is not unprecedented, it is one of those transition stages that entail drastic and far-reaching economic readjustments. Those readjustments are taking place all over the world now.

"They will continue until a balance has been restored.

"Depression follows the war and is its result, as the depression of 1873 was the result of the Civil War." (That has often been stated in this column.)

Mr. Mellon doesn't believe in any "quick or spectacular remedies for the ills from which the world is suffering."

On the other hand he doesn't believe there is "anything fundamentally wrong with the social system under which we have achieved a degree of well-being unprecedented in history."

The Secretary evidently doesn't believe that we need to borrow ideas from Russia.

"Capitalism, or whatever name may be applied to it, has its defects, but is still in its infancy."

And "it has produced an abundance of food and clothing and all the necessities of life."

His suggestion is, give it time.

"The standard of living must be maintained at all costs."

CHECK STUBS TAKEN FROM HIS ROOM

Other Papers Are Found in the Search for Evidence in the Bank Case

Suffolk County officials made several important discoveries today in the case of Guy L. Vaughan, bachelor receiver of five Greater Boston banks, who disappeared March 26 along with some $200,000 of the assets.

They found evidence indicating that others shared in handsome fees paid Vaughan for liquidating wrecked institutions of savings in which wage earners were the principal depositors.

Check stubs and papers relating to Vaughan's personal bank accounts were unearthed in the fugitive's Beacon Hill apartment, in Pinckney st., showing that he had shuffled his money with that of the defunct banks.

PAID BANKS $10,000

In the fall of 1930, Vaughan drew $10,000 in three checks from his private bank deposits and transferred the amounts to the credit of the banks whose muddled affairs he was endeavoring to straighten out.

His purpose in thus intermingling his own money with that of the wrecked institutions was not apparent, according to disclosures that leaked out today.

Audit of his books and accounts as receiver is reported to show

BOY ESCAPES BY TRAIN LEAP

While enroute to Shirley school for boys, from which he escaped and was later captured in Roxbury, Daniel P. Stewart, 19, jumped from an express train as it was passing through West Concord today at a rate of 55 miles an hour.

Stewart was being returned to the school in custody of Thomas F. Devlin, an officer of the school. As the train passed through West Concord, Stewart went to the rest room, kicked out the window glass and jumped through.

The train was stopped in Ayer, where Devlin notified Concord police. Devlin then boarded a small motor driven work car and went back over the tracks to the spot where Stewart jumped. No trace of the youth could be found.

FIRE IN MAINE SWEEPS FARMS

Edgecomb, Me., May 6 (AP)—A forest fire, fanned by a strong east wind, was reported to have destroyed three sets of farm buildings in this town today.

The blaze, covering a front of three miles, swept along despite the efforts of 150 volunteer firemen and apparatus from Boothbay, Boothbay Harbor, Damariscotta and Newcastle.

The fire, apparently starting in the brush near the Damariscotta river, swept to within a quarter of a mile of the Edgecomb postoffice, driven on a shift in the wind swung in northward.

Timberland as well as farm buildings and cottages were in its path.

Crews of men on highway construction jobs were pressed into service.

The buildings reported destroyed were those of Charles Harrington, Mrs. Frank Williams and Mr. Stoddard.

3 YOUTHS HELD IN GIRL CASE

Three youths who took Mary Miller, 26, to City Hospital in a state of coma early today were being held for questioning at Lynn st. police station.

Miss Miller, at first believed to have been drugged or suffering from epilepsy, was pronounced a victim of alcoholism by attending physicians after she awakened from a five-hour coma. She refused to give any information beyond her name.

The youths, all between 18 and 19 years, told hospital authorities at first that they found Miss Miller lying unconscious in a South End street. Later, under questioning, they admitted they had been in a party with the young woman and had become frightened when she became ill from the effects of drinking on the way home.

Lowell Boy on Raft Drowned in Brook

Lowell, May 6—A boy believed to be John Regan, 12, of 268 Lawrence st., was drowned today in Hale's brook off Gorham st. He was paddling a raft with a chum when it capsized. Charles Mulvey of Gorham st., who was passing, saved one boy but failed in an attempt to save the other. Firemen recovered the body. The rescued boy disappeared from the scene before anybody got his name.

ROXBURY SOLDIER ACQUITTED OF DESERTION IN FRANCE

STRANGE STORY IS UNFOLDED AT ARMY TRIAL

One of the most unusual stories unfolded during a court-martial at the Army Base was told in the trial of Peter A. Smith of Delle ave., Roxbury, who was acquitted today of war time desertion in France.

Immediately after the conclusion of the trial he was sent to Fort Banks, where he will remain for a week or ten days before being mustered out of service.

During the course of the trial it appeared that after escaping from his own regiment, he was apprehended, placed in a stockade, dug his way out and then served with other troops for many months.

HIS WIFE MURDERED.

During his absence in France his wife, Mrs. Addie J. Smith, was murdered in Revere by a sailor, Vester Clark, with whom she was living. Her five-year-old son, whom Smith had adopted, was also killed by Clark, who then committed suicide.

These things he did not learn until he returned to his mother's home in Roxbury, but, according to his counsel, Leo M. Harlow, they augmented the condition of asphasia which had previously caused his wanderings in France.

Smith, who was a Studio building attendant, enlisted from his mother's home in Roxbury and after going to the Mexican border was assigned to Company L, 127th Infantry, 32d Division, made up chiefly of Wisconsin troops.

HE CAN'T REMEMBER

While with this regiment in France he was wounded in the left shoulder. The wound was a through and through one. He went into a hospital where he ran a temperature of 102 for many days. At the end of four weeks he was released. He then returned to duty with his regiment and the government's contended he deserted September 16, 1918.

Smith testified he had no recollection of escaping and has a faint recollection of embarking with troops from a French port for New York. He does not remember what port it was. He landed at New York and when he returned to his mother's home was wearing a full uniform of the Third Infantry. He continued to wear this uniform for several days after his release but does not remember where or how he got the uniform.

Upon his return to his mother's home he learned of the murder of his wife and her five-year-old son. Frank J. Smith, who had been clubbed to death by Clark.

The only witness against Smith was Capt. L. E. Chase of field artillery, who was a second lieutenant at the time of Smith's presumed escape from the stockade to which he had been confined. He testified that the hole under the stockade indicated Smith may have left in that manner.

Atty. Harlow planned to call Dr. Hale Power of the Boston Veterans bureau to testify that Smith had been treated at Boston Psychopathic for a nervous disease, but it was not necessary.

Col. Theodore Taylor was president of the court that tried Smith. Judge Advocate Hinman prosecuted. Atty. Harlow, civilian counsel for Smith was assisted by James P. Rose, vice State Commander of American Legion.

MASONS URGED TO FIGHT GREED AND CRIME

Portland, Me., May 6 (AP)—A call for Masons to rally against the forces of "disorder and dishonesty, which menace the integrity of our government and the peace of the world" was sounded by Chief Justice William R. Pattangall of Maine today in an address before the Grand Lodge of Maine, Free and Accepted Masons.

Terming it an organization aloof from partisan politics and unconcerned with class distinction and racial origins, Justice Pattangall said Masonry was "especially fitted" to aid in cleaning out political combinations "of organized greed and organized crime," a combination which is substituting for the rule of the people a feudal system as vicious as that which dominated Europe in the Middle Ages and hardly less powerful or difficult to overthrow.

Such combinations have spread, he said, until they affect not only the election of minor officials but "the selection of a governor of a great state, of a senator of the United States, of national congressmen, in states in which the judiciary is elective, the choice of those who preside over the courts may and frequently does depend upon the support of an alliance between corrupt financial interests and gangs of criminals."

RECORDS BAR 4 ON GARRETT CASE PANEL

Names Are Dropped by Court Order; Many Others Are Also Excused

The names of four men who have criminal records were found today on the list of traverse jurors from which the jury for the third Garrett trial, starting tomorrow, will be drawn.

They were immediately excused from service by the court.

Of the 104 jurors drawn, only 58 remain available for service at the trial of Oliver B. Garrett, former liquor raider, his wife and Lillian V. Hatch in the first session of Suffolk Superior Criminal Court.

MAY CALL OTHERS

Court, wielded the "pruning knife" on the names of 17 others. Five were lopped off because they were not found at the addresses listed and 12 were excused for reasons of business or sickness or defered service.

Twenty-four others of the original 104 will be held for trials listed in the fourth and fifth sessions.

With a total of 24 challenges permissible for the government and defense and only 58 jurors available on the criminal list, there appeared to be a strong possibility that it would be necessary to call upon jurors from the civil sessions.

HAVE NEW COUNSEL

Daniel J. Gallagher, counsel for the women at the two trials in which jury disagreements have resulted, today filed with the clerk of courts official notice of his withdrawal from the case.

William S. Kinney, a former assistant district attorney of Suffolk under Joseph C. Pelletier, already has filed his appearance for the women. Herbert F. Callahan again will represent Garrett.

Garrett is accused of conspiring to extort and accepting gratuities from John F. Sullivan. The women are co-defendants under the conspiracy indictment and are also charged with aiding in the commission of a felony.

Mrs. Garrett, with friends, was at the courthouse today for a reason unexplained.

A new government witness also appeared. He is William Quinlan, former proprietor of the Hayward Cafe, where Miss Hatch was a checkroom employe.

Judge William A. Burns will preside. Assistant District Attorneys Frederick T. Doyle and Daniel J. Gillen again will present the government's case.

Archduke Leopold to Wed New York Woman

New York, May 6 (INC)—Memories of the "Angel of the Tombs," who used to draw up to that forbidding place in a slick, shiny limousine when Archduke Leopold of Austria was in jail there, were recalled today when dispatches told of the archduke's probable engagement to "a New York woman." Dispatches quoted him as saying: "Soon I will be announcing my engagement to a Canadian lady now residing in New York."

Archduke Leopold

When Leopold was in the tombs the gentle caller was Mrs. Alicia Coburn. Leopold referred to her as "my friend," but no word of love was forthcoming.

Leopold was acquitted November 24 on a charge of aiding in the theft of the famous $600,000 Napoleon necklace of his aunt, Archduchess Marie Therese.

Helen Hayes in Reunion With Husband and Baby

Los Angeles, May 6 (AP)—Helen Hayes, actress wife of Charles MacArthur, the author, was here today for a reunion with her husband and the baby who was declared not an "act of God" by an authority on arbitration board.

Shortly before the child was born, Miss Hayes left the play in which she was appearing. The producers declined to pay the salaries of actors thrown out of work, contending the baby was "an act of God" and the contracts therefore were void.

Blaine "Notoriety Seeker," Says Postmaster Brown

Washington, May 6—Senator Blaine (R), of Wisconsin, was characterized as a "notoriety seeker" and accused of uttering "unmitigated falsehoods" by Postmaster General Brown in a fiery statement yesterday.

individual initiative, and not by surrendering the management of business and industry to government or any board or group. That seems to be a slap for the farm board.

There is nothing to be discouraged about, says the Secretary. On the other hand he has "no means of knowing when or how we shall emerge from the valley in which we are now traveling."

But, he does know that things will come out all right.

After reading Mr. Mellon's speech in full, turn your mind to President's Hoover's recent statement that the world's expenditure for war "is now nearly five billions of dollars yearly. An increase of nearly 70 per cent over that previous to the World War. Five and one-half million men are actively under arms and 20,000,000 in reserve."

Enough money is wasted on future wars that should not happen to solve the world's problems. Men are fools and so are the nations.

They need a lesson, and are getting it.

Nothing succeeds like success, even if it is only temporary. President Chiang Kai-Shek, president of the Chinese Republic, tells his international congress to study, imitate and emulate Soviet Russia. He tells his countrymen, especially, to imitate Russia's development of industries and communications.

The Russian five-year-plan has done many things. It has pushed Canada from third place to first in supplying wheat to Britain, pushed the United States from third to fifth place. It has caused some "best minds" in this country to change their attitude toward Russia from sneering to wondering and worrying.

In our troubles here we drift and ask each other "what do you think?"

The Russians have brains enough to formulate, adopt and stick to a PLAN, whether they can succeed in the long run or not (our "best minds" are sure they must fail), at least they HAVE a plan, and are working at it.

ELOPERS FOIL DEATH THREAT

Hollywood, Cal., May 6 (INS)—How Miss Louise Little, Los Angeles society girl, and O'Tracy Johnson, 3rd, scion of a pioneer California family, were married at Reno, Nev., last Friday as a result of kidnaping and murder threats was revealed here today.

The couple were to be married at a fashionable church wedding in Beverly Hills June 14, but a speedy ceremony was decided upon following receipt of notes threatening the bride.

The first note, received 10 days ago by Miss Little's parents, demanded $50,000. The writer linked himself with the Virginia Brooks and Louise Teuber slayings in San Diego.

Businessmen Write Best Poetry Today, Says Publisher

New York, May 6 (AP)—In support of one of his pet theories —that more good verse is being written now than during any of the so-called golden ages of literature—Wilfred J. Funk, business man and poet, has devised a new game.

It is a guessing game.

It consists of reading aloud the work of the Elizabethans and Victorians and the verses of contemporary poets, without revealing the authorship, and then guessing who wrote what.

There is, for instance, this line: "Old sounds born of the gossamer of rain—"

Swinburne might have written it, but he didn't.

2 FLIERS DIE IN FOG CRASH

Burbank, Cal., May 8 (AP)—Art Starbuck and Charles R. Parmalee, pilots of a Pacific Air Transport mail plane, were found dead in the wreckage of their plane on a mountainside eight miles north of here today.

Flying the northbound night air mail from San Diego, the airmen met death in a heavy fog that shrouded this vicinity.

Officials of the Pacific Air Transport Company said they were in touch with the ship by radio shortly before it crashed. The plane was flying at about 2500 feet, they said, and the pilots did not report they were unable to find the landing field, although there was a dense fog.

POPE URGES AID FOR JOBLESS

Vatican City, May 6 (AP)—Pope Pius told Cardinal Mundelein of Chicago in a farewell audience today that he approves and encourages building activity to relieve unemployment.

The Cardinal, who starts home by way of Paris tomorrow, said he would speed up and expand the church building program planned for Chicago.

The Pontiff reviewed building activities sponsored by the Vatican recalling that he had built 1500 parochial houses in southern Italy and had approved the construction of 2000 more.

The Cardinal told him about conditions in Chicago and discussed, among other things, the general economic depression and the necessity for the church to assist in its relief.

New York, May 6 (AP)—The wife of the President of the United States and the widow of a former President united today in urging that real observance of Mothers' Day this year be in promoting the welfare of mothers in the years to come.

Mrs. Herbert Hoover and Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, Sr.,—mothers themselves, addressed 400 men and women at a meeting of the Maternity Center Association.

Protesting that the death rate among mothers in the United States —16,000 of whom lose their lives in childbirth each year—is the highest in the civilized world, Mrs. Kermit Roosevelt, presiding, asked the group to cooperate in a nation-wide campaign to promote better maternity care.

Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, Sr., said:

"Picture these 16,000 disorganized homes, broken-hearted husbands, motherless children. What an uncertain future for the little baby—and the other children; perhaps a foster home, an orphanage, or the streets.

"No citizen who knows of the neglect of mothers in this country can fail to feel a sense of personal responsibility for helping to prevent these unnecessary deaths."

Cannon, in Hospital, Plans Senate Fight

Washington, May 6 (AP)—Bishop James Cannon, Jr., said today he expected to be present at any hearings of the Senate campaign funds committee into his campaign expenditures in Virginia in 1928.

He returned to Washington yesterday from Nashville, Tenn. and entered Sibley Hospital. He asked a postponement of the Senate committee hearing, which was fixed for today, but the committee decided to go ahead, later postponing it because of illness of counsel.

Herndon, Pangborn on Last Leg of Hop

Miami, Fla., May 6 (AP)—Clyde Pangborn and Hugh Herndon, Jr., hopped off from here shortly before 8 a. m., E. S. T. today on the last leg of a flight from New York to Porto Rico and return. They planned to reach Roosevelt Field, N. Y., this afternoon without stopping en route.

The fliers were accompanied by Capt. Lewis Yancey, transatlantic pilot, who is teaching them navigation in preparation for a proposed world flight.

Roxbury Man Held in Theft From Vet

Andrew J. Sullivan, 27, of Calumet st., Roxbury, was held in $5000 for the theft of American Legion funds from the safe of Quincy Court, charged with assaulting Peter Colby, 57, of Paterson, N. J., a war veteran, and robbing him of $200 in bonus money.

Wadsworth's Mother Dies

Washington, May 6—Mrs. Louisa Travers Wadsworth, widow of former Rep. James W. Wadsworth and mother of former United States Senator James W. Wadsworth, Jr., of New York, is dead.

Mrs. Diamond Fights to See Her Husband

Albany, May 6 (AP)—Counsel for Mrs. Alice Diamond today obtained an order requiring the state to show cause why she should not be permitted to see her husband, Jack (Legs) Diamond, at the Albany Hospital.

Isaiah H. Prior, counsel for the Diamonds, alleged Atty. Gen. Bennett had acted unlawfully in barring Mrs. Diamond from her husband's room. He is recovering from bullet wounds suffered when ambushed last week at the Aratoga Inn in the Catskills.

Burned Body Is Found in Woods

Marlboro, May 6 (INS)—The charred body of a man about 60 years of age believed to be that of Toomey Sullivan of this city was found today in a wooded section off Stevens st., which had been burned over by a brush fire.

The discovery was made by John Savage taking a short cut through that section.

The clothing was burned off and the body burned almost beyond recognition. Police began an investigation.

One Husband, But 2 Divorces for Her

Springfield, May 6 (AP)—Mrs. Fannie A. Delevan, of Chicopee, was granted a second divorce today in Probate Court from the same husband, John S. Delevan of Albany, N. Y.

They were married in 1885 and the wife obtained a divorce in 1904 for desertion. They were re-married in 1922 and the husband disappeared six months later.

Miami, Fla., May 6 (AP)—William O. Harris of Los Angeles was elected president of Kiwanis International, succeeding Raymond Crossman of Omaha, Neb., at the annual convention today.

POLA'S IN LOVE AGAIN

Tempestuous as ever, black-eyed Pola Negri is back at Hollywood and in love again. Pola divorced Count Mdivani only a short time ago. The count married Mary McCormick and now Pola admits she has a new love. "He is an American," she declared, "and we'll wed within two years." (Int'l photo.)

MURDER SEARCH GOES ON IN AIR

murder in Yonkers and for the slaying at North Merrick, L. I., early today of Patrolman Frederick Hirsch—in attempting to rejoin Rudolph Durniger, his companion, police say, in the Brannen slaying.

One hundred Nassau county police were ordered out to hunt for Helen Walsh 16-year-old Brooklyn girl, who accompanied Crowley on the automobile ride in which Patrolman Hirsch was killed. It is feared that she may have been murdered.

The shooting of Patrolman Hirsch brought out a large detail of police, detectives and volunteers, and one of the first persons they rounded up was John McCahill, who was hunting for a young woman who, he said, had been kidnaped from him.

GIRL KIDNAPED.

At the police station he identified, from photographs, Crowley as the kidnaper. The girl is 17. Police withheld her name because they feared Crowley might kill her to avoid recognition.

Hirsch was just going off duty, when a call came to his booth that a truck piled high with tires, believed to have been stolen, was seen speeding through North Merrick. Hirsch, who had been a policeman four years, offered to accompany the team who was to relieve him, Patrolman Peter Vodin, a rookie.

SPOTS PARKED AUTO

In a lane in the outskirts of the village, Hirsch saw a small roadster parked in the shadows, with the lights out. While Vodin brought the police car to a halt, Hirsch called out:

"Come—get out of there. Let's see your license."

"Hey! you're Francis Crowley," Vodin said Hirsch exclaimed. "Take off your hat!"

The man made a gesture, Vodin said, as if to take off his hat, and suddenly reached inside his coat, pulled out a revolver and emptied it into Hirsch. Vodin said he could see the man's face plainly, and he, too, recognized him as Crowley.

LEWIS PLEADS FOR 2D DEGREE

Prohibition and the modern tendency to glorify gunmen in books and plays were given by Atty. William H. Lewis as the causes of the downfall of three Somerville youths on trial in Middlesex Superior Court for the murder of Evangelista L. Bagni, filling station proprietor.

In his final argument Atty. Lewis, counsel for John J. Oliver, one of the three defendants, declared the boys were "victims of th age and day in which we are living."

"Every day we read of the life of Al Capone, Legs Diamond and other gang leaders. Present day society and its standards are to blame for this crime, not these boys who are only products of our civilization. We make killers of our boys—then kill them for killing."

Reno Re-elects "Free and Easy" Mayor

Reno, Nev., May 6 (AP)—Mayor E. E. Roberts, liberal leader of Reno and his administrative officers except one councilman, were returned to office for four year terms at a municipal election yesterday.

The mayor decisively defeated two opponents, Howard S. Doyle and Milburn R. Gregory, taking a majority of the votes in five of the six wards. Complete unofficial returns gave Roberts 3773; Doyle 2884, Gregory 180. In his campaign the mayor defended Nevada's quick divorce and gambling laws and attacked prohibition.

ATLANTIC MAIL THEFT BARED

London, May 6 (INS)—British postal authorities today were investigating the robbery of a consignment of transatlantic mail received here from New York.

Empty envelopes were found in the mail bags. The theft is believed to have occurred in New York.

His Lid Is On

But by putting his new straw lid on, Arthur Sarnoff pried the lid off the straw hat season. Wearing a smart new hat, he was the first of the season to be seen on Boston's streets today (Staff photo.)

STRAW HAT OUT AHEAD OF TIME

"Oooooo, look!"

The last isn't as startling as it sounds; merely the expression used by the ladies when they shed cumbersome coats and emerge for the street in light dresses.

The summerish appearance marked the second day of warm, even temperature in the comfort of the late 60's. The appearance of the straw headgear was nine full days ahead of the unwritten law that says May 15 for such equipment. The "hero" was Arthur Sarnoff of New York.

How long hats or forms will last is a problem, though, according to the weather man. He predicted showers for tonight and tomorrow.

U. S. PAY PLAN 'DANGEROUS'

Washington, May 6 (AP)—Wages and their relation to economic balance were discussed at today's meeting of the International Chamber of Commerce by Aloyse Meyer of Lexemburg, president of the European Steel Cartel.

He drew a distinction between nominal wages or the amount of money paid, and "real wages," representing the amount of goods that can be bought with the pay.

He said European conditions differed from those here and that introduction of the American system of high nominal wages in those countries would be dangerous.

"The general tendency may and should be directed toward high real wages," said Meyer. "It is of little consequence to a wage-earner if his income be decreased or increased, provided the cost of living increases or decreases in the same proportions."

Industrial Leader Dies at Naugatuck

Naugatuck, Ct., May 6 (AP)—William T. Rodenbach, 78, identified for more than 40 years with industries here, died today. He was president of the Naugatuck Manufacturing Co. and long treasurer of the Goodyear Metallic Rubber Shoe Co. and the Goodyear India Rubber Glove Co.

Mr. Rodenbach was a native of New York and a graduate in 1874 of the College of the City of New York. He is survived by a widow and three children, one of the latter being Mrs. Theodore W. Reed of Lowell, Mass.

POINTS TO EASE PERIOD STUDIES CAME TO HER

Noted Writer Believes She Lived at Versailles Court in the 18th Century

By KINGSBURY SMITH.
International News Correspondent

London, May 6—Elynor Glyn, the noted authoress, believes that she has lived before and will live again.

She said in an interview that she feels sure she lived in ancient Greece, 18th century France, and the quinquecento period of Italy.

"There are many reasons why I know that I have lived for at least 2000 years," she added.

HISTORY FAMILIAR

"One reason is that some periods of history seem to be perfectly familiar to me. When I was a child certain periods seemed to be known to me without any study. I knew all about them instinctively. That was the first thing which made me realize that I had lived in many lands before.

"I never found any difficulty in learning everything about the Greek classics. I seemed to know, at the age of 12, the exact atmosphere of ancient Greece. When I was a child I was always instinctively drawing Greek faces. But I put the use my plodding brain to learn about some other periods equally interesting.

"Another reason is connected with Italy. There are certain things in Italy, belonging to the beginning of the quinquecento period, which I seem to know instinctively—the manner of life then, the costumes, the personalities who lived at that time, more especially in regard to Venice and Florence.

"All the history of Italy at that period seemed to be familiar to me without great study. I must have lived then.

DISAPPROVED OF MORALS

"But the most vivid recollection of all is that of France in the 18th century. I have always, it seems to me, known 18th century France. My knowledge just came to me without effort.

"But the lewd me disapproved very strongly of the extravagances and the morals of that period in French history, although I certainly lived then, and in an apartment at the chateau of Versailles.

"I cannot say who or what I was except that I know, absolutely, I lived there—and at Versailles. I might have been some French nobleman, attached to the court, a cynical observer of life."

Miss Glyn told the reporter that she first began to think seriously about reincarnation 20 years ago. She believes that one must go on being reincarnated until they have eliminated all their faults and expiated the errors which they have committed in former states.

LIFE AFTER DEATH

She thinks that when one dies the lifely veil of illusion is lifted and one sees the result of their faults.

"That is our hell," she said. "When we realize our faults in life we want to come back to expiate them. But the moment one is reborn the veil of illusion is dropped again, and one is left only with certain instincts, which are subconscious memories, to guide one toward that ultimate perfection for which we ought to strive."

GASOLINE PRICE AT NEW LOW

Chicago, May 6—The Sinclair Refining Co. today reduced the retail price of its third grade gasoline from 11½ cents to 8 cents in the metropolitan area.

Other large companies recently began selling low priced gasoline to meet competition from independent filling stations, but the 8 cent rate was the lowest on record for a major company.

New York, May 6—The Standard Oil Co. and the Sinclair Refining Co. today reduced the retail price of its third-grade gasoline from 8½ to 8 cents.

King Will Tune in on Siamese Music

Purchase, N. Y., May 6—King Prajadhipok of Siam, beginning to feel the need for a little Siamese music, has borrowed a 14-tube radio set from Mr. and Mrs. Roy C. Cool of Egbert Hill, Morristown, N. J.

The set is the only duplicate in this section of the country of the one the King has in his Bangkok palace. He hopes to be able to tune in at breakfast on after-dinner music in Siam.

The operation for a cataract, the chief purpose of the King's visit to this country, is to be performed Sunday.

VIRGINIA BRANNEN — HENRY MILLER — VIRGINIA BRANNEN

BEFORE GAY LIFE BECKONED

The haunting shadow of death hovers over the inquiry into the killing of Virginia Brannen, Bangor (Me.) ten-cent taxi dancer, at Yonkers, N. Y., two weeks ago. Patrolman Frederick Hirsch paid with his life early today when he attempted to arrest

HER LAST LOVE BEFORE DEATH

AUSTRALIA TO VOTE FOR CASH

Canberra, Australia, May 6 (AP)—The Australian labor government shortly will submit to the people in the form of a referendum its requests for sweeping powers in industrial, commercial and financial matters, in an effort to find a way out of the economic crisis.

Meanwhile the government faces the task of finding $25,000,000 to pay treasury bills due in London on June 30, which it is impossible to renew for release. The government plans to meet the payments by sending $25,000,000 of gold from the reserves of the Commonwealth Bank overseas, but has encountered the opposition of the board of the Commonwealth Bank.

Announcement of the proposed referendum came after the government and the bank reached a deadlock over the government's proposal to draw on the reserves today. The government has inserted a clause in its Commonwealth Bank amendment bill, empowering the government to draw on the bank's gold reserves for overseas debt payments.

ALIBI GIRL IS TO WED GUNMAN

Waukegan, Ill., May 6 (AP)—Jack McGurn, Capone machine gunner, stepped to Lake County's marriage license counter Sunday and obtained a certificate to wed Louise Rolfe, the woman who established his "alibi" when McGurn was sought for the murder of seven Moran gangsters in 1929.

He gave his real name, Vincent Gebardi, age 28, and his intended bride's as Louise Boex, 24.

Under another alias of James Demory, the gangster was divorced in Dupage County court Saturday by Mrs. Helen C. Demory, who was granted $2500 cash alimony and $30 a week for the support of their six-year-old daughter.

China Forms Big Industrial Plan

Washington, May 6 (AP)—Commercial Attache Julean Arnold at Peiping today notified the commerce department that China is planning an industrialization program similar in some respects to the Russian five-year plan.

The Chinese government plans factories to be financed by a $15,000,000 industrial loan, including a textile mill, a woolen mill, salt and sugar refinery and a chemical works, Arnold reported.

Death Car Driver Under Doctor's Care

Lowell, May 6 (AP)—The need of additional medical attention today prevented the appearance of John Broderick of Waltham to answer a charge of manslaughter.

Broderick was driver of the automobile in which two men were killed and two others injured at North Chelmsford yesterday. His case and bail of $2000 were continued until tomorrow.

WAR GAS FREES AUTO DRIVER

Gas poisoning he suffered on the battlefield in France prevented Carl Williams, 32, of Haverhill, from drinking intoxicants, he testified in Middlesex District Court today.

Judge Edward A. Counihan found Williams not guilty of driving an auto while under the influence of liquor and drunkenness. Arlington police told the court Williams admitted having had "a couple of drinks of gin" when he was arrested April 29.

Williams denied ever having had a drink and said it was impossible for him to drink even a glass of milk because of the condition brought on by the poison gas. At times, he said, he reeled and talked thickly due to reaction of the poisoning. In finding the defendant not guilty Judge Counihan said he believed Williams unfit to operate an automobile.

What's the Value of a Mayor? 'Jimmy' Walker Tells

New York, May 6 (AP)—Light on just how much a mayor amounts to comes from two men who ought to know. Says James J. Walker, mayor of New York:

Says Edwin Thompson of Liverpool:

Reykjavik, Iceland, May 6 (AP)—Sigurd Johnson, whose airplane expedition in search of Augustine Courtauld, the British scientist, in Greenland failed when his plane developed motor trouble, returned here today in the steamer Odinn with bad news for other rescuers.

While he was at the edge of the Greenland ice barrier he made contact with the headquarters of the British Arctic air route expedition of which Courtauld was a member and was told that the chances of rescuing the ice-capped station where Courtauld is to be are very small.

Depending on that frozen plateau would be practically impossible, he was informed.

He brought more cheering news, however, concerning the three men who set out overland to relieve Courtauld two weeks ago. They have not been heard from, but they have enough provisions to last them another month.

PORTSMOUTH FIRE PROBED

Portsmouth, N. H., May 6 (AP)—Investigation was begun today into the origin of the fire that destroyed a five-story apartment and business block, an unoccupied Boston & Maine Railroad wharf, spread to a score of other buildings, and for a time threatened Portsmouth's business district. Loss had been estimated at $250,000.

The fire started apparently in a garage on the ground floor of the McIntosh block at the junction of Fleet, Porter and Congress sts. late yesterday.

Six families were driven from the apartments. The occupants of four stores on the ground floor were forced to flee.

Sparks ignited the roofs of dwellings on High, School, Hanover, Fleet, and Market sts. On market st. the interior of a three-story stone building, unoccupied, the property of the Boston & Maine railroad, was destroyed.

A navy tug and a harbor tug, two detachments of marines from the Portsmouth navy yard and apparatus from Dover, Hampton, Hampton Beach, and York Beach, York Village, Kittery, and Eliot aided the Portsmouth fire fighters.

Capt. Thomas Hathaway of the Dover fire department was overcome and Ladderman Ralph Welch of York Beach was injured in the arm and back by a piece of falling granite.

Eddie Cantor to Be Interviewed on Radio

Hollywood, May 6—The inimitable Eddie Cantor, famous wit, former star of the Ziegfeld "Follies" and now with Samuel Goldwyn, will be the star guest of Louella O. Parsons, motion picture editor of the Hearst newspapers and Universal Service, this evening. Mr. Cantor will be interviewed on a number of current topics.

The interview will be heard over the Columbia Broadcasting System, WNAC in Boston, at 8:30.

RED-HAIRED 'IT' GIRL MUST TAKE REST

"Burned Out" by Work and Worry, Doctors Say, and Retires to Sanitarium

Hollywood, Cal., May 6 (US)—Suffering from a nervous collapse, Clara Bow, whose hoydenish capers on and off the screen have brought laughter to millions, is seriously ill at Glendale Sanitarium.

According to Dr. J. Wesley Hommel, it will be many months before her health can be completely restored. He said complete rest and freedom from all excitement are necessary if she is to recover.

Weakened by the rapid fire of events in her life during the past few months, Miss Bow suddenly broke down Sunday night.

OVERWORK BLAMED

She had been to Paramount studios during the afternoon, to rehearse scenes for her next picture. She had showed signs of extreme nervousness for several weeks. After she returned home and retired she collapsed.

Dr. Hommel said he found Miss Bow hysterical, weeping and laughing by turn, her nerves completely out of control.

"Overwork brought it on," Dr. Hommel said, "coupled with terrific strain she has been under since she had her first trouble with Daisy Devoe last November.

"Then, during the last few weeks, came those attacks by the 'Coast Reporter.' The three things together were more than she could bear.

FILM HELD UP

"I am not a nerve specialist so I called on Dr. Victor Parkin. He went to see Miss Bow Monday and in the afternoon we decided to move her to the sanitarium."

Pending Miss Bow's recovery, work on her next production has been indefinitely suspended. Miss Bow's present illness, although by far the most serious, is not the first nervous breakdown she has suffered.

Petite Peggy Shannon, red-headed like Clara and fresh from the Broadway stage, was chosen to replace Clara. Sylvia Sidney, another recruit from the stage, was called upon when Clara became ill as a result of the Daisy Devoe trial. Miss Sidney is now a star.

Reincarnated?

Elinor Glyn, noted writer, revealed today that she is a believer in reincarnation. She declared in an interview that she lived 2000 years ago and will live again.

WIFE SEES HIM KILL RIVAL

Northampton, May 6 (INS)—The eternal triangle today figured in the alleged slaying of John Veleskie, 62, of Haverhill, by his "best friend," Steve Kolka, 39, of Haydenville.

Following the death of Veleskie in Dickinson Hospital today, Kolka was arrested on a charge of first degree murder. Police said he confessed to beating Veleskie with his fists on Monday night.

"No matter who he was, I would have killed him," police quoted Kolka as saying.

Mrs. Kolka, 35, mother of five children, was an eye-witness to the tragedy.

Two Families Flee Fire in Malden Home

Two families were driven to the street early today when fire swept through a two-story wooden dwelling in Leland st., Malden. The blaze started in the attic and spread quickly through the building.

Mr. and Mrs. Morris Harris and their three children, occupants of the second floor, were awakened by the smell of smoke and aroused Mr. and Mrs. Charles Powell on the first floor. Damage was estimated at $3000.

FRANCE AGAIN TRIES FOR NAVAL AGREEMENT

Paris, May 6 (AP)—Rene Massigli, head of the French naval delegation, has gone back to London with a new set of instructions to try to reach a compromise and ifferences between France and Italy, the foreign office announced today.

It is understood that the Italian and British negotiations have been similarly instructed and that the Tripartite treaty conference will be resumed immediately.

The 1931-32 naval building program approved by the Chamber of Deputies last February was discussed today by the naval affairs committee, which received a report by a sub-committee on construction to be undertaken in 1931-1932.

There is no question of changing the tonnage figures made public at the time the budget was adopted, for no modifications are possible in the appropriations included in the budget as it was approved.

Henderson Hopeful Agreement Will Come

London, May 6 (AP)—Foreign Secretray Henderson told the House of Commons today there was still hope that a settlement of the Franco-Italian naval negotiations would be reached.

He said the negotiations had been conducted all along with the utmost good will, adding, "and we are not without hope that a settlement will be reached."

At present the British government is awaiting the French reply to the answer the Italian government gave t othe French memorandum of April 29 outlining France's position.

BOYD OPPOSES N. E. RAILROAD MERGER

Consolidation of New England railroads, advocated as the best solution by President Willard of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, was scored by William H. Boyd, counsel for the O. P. and M. J. Van Sweringen and the Chesapeake & Ohio-Nickel Plate Railroad System, at a continued hearing today in the State House.

Speaking before the legislative committee on railroads, Boyd said an all-New England system means the "total elimination of all competition between and among your railroads."

He contended that any such elimination of competition would be contrary to congressional orders that "in the unification or consolidation of railroads 'competition shall be preserved as fully as possible.'"

Such consolidation, he said, would be "clearly inimical" to the best interests of New England.

He reiterated previously expressed opinions of the Van Sweringen interests on the solution of the New England railroad problem, and outlined their plan whereby trunk lines of the East would be permitted to enter New England territory.

In order to permit rail entrance of the trunk lines into New England, Boyd would have the so-called bridge lines allocated between them. These roads are the Delaware & Hudson, Lehigh & Hudson, Lehigh & New England, the New York, Ontario & Western and the Rouses Point-Ogdensburg line to the Rutland.

He said that if the New England roads were freed from trunk line domination and made "independent in fact as in name" with open gateways, then conditions which affect the ability of the Van Sweringens to serve NW England will have been met and satisfied.

Boyd pointed out that it costs more to carry a given unit of railroad tonnage over a given distance on the New England railroads than it does to carry the same unit for the same distance over the railroads of other portions of the eastern part of the country.

DRY LAW FAILS, SAYS BEER KING

Washington, May 6 (INS)—Back in America for the first time since 1902, Benny Dessau, portly beer baron of Denmark, saw the United States in a sad state from prohibition, he said today.

Dessau is managing director of the United Breweries, Ltd., and the Tuborg Breweries, Ltd., of Copenhagen, and head of Denmark's delegation to the International Chamber of Commerce.

He said the American people were ruining their health by drinking illegally manufactured liquors, and that prohibition would never be a success.

He recommended government control of liquor as the best means of reducing alcohol consumption and curing drunkenness.

Court Guests May Curtsey to Wales

Windsor, Eng., May 6 (AP)—Interest is increasing in the first two courts of the season. Indications are that debutantes will curtsey to the Prince of Wales because of the king's recent illness.

PERSIANS MUST WED OR PAY TAX

Jerusalem, May 6 (INS)—Persians who do not marry before they reach the age of 25 will in the future be subject to an annually increasing tax.

The Persian ministry of the interior has worked out draft legislation directed against celibacy and with a view to compelling every man and woman of the age of 25 to marry.

The step is being taken in order to regenerate the land of the Arabian Nights.

The tax on men will be $10 the first year. The tax will apply to women, except that the first tax will be $5 instead of $10.

A maximum rate is also being established for dowries. In the future no Persian will have to pay more than $10 for a wife. In Persia it is the bridegroom who pays a dowry for the bride to his future father-in-law.

Lion as Bullfighter Looks Good for But One Round

San Luis Potosi, Mexico, May 6 (AP)—The lion may be the king of the jungles, but the bull is monarch of the arena when the two animals meet there.

A lion called "Prince" won the first round in a match yesterday. He hooked his claws into the bull's face and laid him low, stalking majestically out of the ring.

But in the second round "Prince" got in the way of the bull's horns and was gored to death.

INDICTMENT OF HATHAWAY IS ATTACKED

Newport, R. I., May 6—The indictment of Elliott R. Hathaway for the murder of Verna E. Russell is null and void, the defense claimed today.

Samuel I. Jacobs of Boston, counsel for the accused Fall River man, announced that one of the several motions he would file today would petition the court to declare the indictment defective on the ground that grand jury deliberations of the case were not wholly secret.

His claim is based, he said, upon the action of a person who entered the grand jury room to administer to a woman witness who fainted during the proceedings.

Jacobs said if the Superior Court refused to take cognizance of his plea he would carry the defense battle to the Supreme Court.

With trial scheduled for June 8 and court recess for three months on June 30, there appeared to be a possibility that litigation on this claim might delay the trial until October.

The defense attorney also said he unoubtedly would file a motion for a change of venue for trial, the hostile demonstration upon the occasion of the grand jury proceedings here convincing him that his client could not obtain a fair trial in Newport County.

Jacobs yesterday conferred at length with Rep. Louis Hathaway and Mrs. Hathaway, of Fall River, parents of the man accused of strangling the Fall River student nurse at Tiverton on March 23. The conference is believed to have concerned the impending motions.

FOUND ONLY DISILLUSION

similar shufflings over quite a period. Vaughan's family and counsel insist that if located and brought back to the city he can prove he never wilfully misapplied any of the bank funds entrusted to his care.

NO TRACE OF SUITCASE.

The Middlesex grand jury and the warrant issued by Central Municipal Court in Boston charge theft of $200.500 on checks alleged to have been made to his personal account.

Renewed hunt today by agents of Dist. Atty. Foley failed to reveal any trace of the suitcase which is reported to have vanished from Vaughan's apartment just prior to search by the police. It is thought this suitcase contained important papers and that it may have been taken by Vaughan.

When he checked out of Hotel Mayflower in Washington on the evening of March 28 he carried only a Gladstone bag and the porters and bellhops said he did not have any trunk or suitcase.

VAUGHAN'S ROOM SEARCHED

Lieut. James F. Daley, attached to the office of Dist. Atty Foley, Inspector James Connannon and Atty. George R. Farnum, counsel for Vaughan's family, visited the Pinckney st. apartment today and searched the rooms for some time, following a long conference with Dist. Atty. Foley.

Search of Vaughan's private files brought forth Vaughan's personal bankbooks and check stubs and other papers, the nature of which were kept secret but which are said to throw light on vital phases of the case. Whether these papers contained any record of Vaughan's alleged fee-splitting with other persons, could not be ascertained.

BANK DEPOSITS SHRINK.

The check stubs and cancelled checks and bankbooks showed Vaughan's private accounts to have shrunk alarmingly of late. A Boston bank in which he had been a depositor for 10 years holds a balance of but $235.61, and a bank in Northampton where he usually carried a large account has $14 to his credit.

Today's hunt in his apartment showed that Vaughan had drawn $500 from the Northampton bank on March 3, the day he and one of his roommates, George Mastaglio, Jr., went to Washingtoin in Vaughan's car.

Vaughan's present cash on hand in both banks totals $249.61. On Oct. 28, 30, Vaughan drew $2500 from his private banking account and transferred the money to the credit of the private banks he was liquidating. On Nov. 19, 1930, he drew another $2500 by check and placed it with the banks' money and earlier that fall drew one of his personal checks for $5000 which he applied in a similar manner.

BONNER GETS DATA

When notified by Dist. Atty. Foley today of the discoveries made at the missing receiver's apartment, Frederick D. Bonner, appointed temporary receiver after the flight of Vaughan, asked that the data be turned over to him to assist in his audit. This was done after Bonner signed for the checkbooks, stubs and othe. papers.

Yale Men Are Asked to Join Crusaders

New Haven, May 6 (AP)—Dean Clarence W. Mendell of Yale College, a member of the Crusaders, an organization of men opposed to the prohibition law, today urged Yale students to become members of that organization.

Speaking on the principles of the organization, at a meeting opening a campus membership campaign, he said:

"The Crusaders have laid out a policy which represents the belief of those who are interested in making the United States a country of temperate citizens, who are temperate, not because they are legally forced to be, but because they realize the importance of rational and effective temperance."

Women to Attend Veterans' Smoker

For the first time on record—locally, at least—women will sit in with men at a smoke talk when Lieut. Joseph F. Wehner Post, V. F. W., holds one of these affairs, so long a mystery to women, at Wehner Hall, in Everett, later this month.

Cigarettes in large quantities will be passed out to the women who attend, while there will be cigars for the men.

COMPLAINT

Dear Al:

The Camels are late! They don't seem to be coming, snahoo! Wot's all this potwash they're giving us about announcing the winners of their contest about May 1. . . . Just where is about May 1? . . . Here it is May 3 and I haven't received my check for about $25,000. . . . first prize money, which, with about a million others, I fully expect to get. . . . How am I to plan my summer in Europe if they don't send it pretty soon? . . . Or, how am I to plan my summer in Europe? . . . Or, how am I? . . . How are you, for that matter? . . . Just how does one hasten the coming of the Camels? . . . Do you think tossing them a date would help? . . . Or is it dromedaries that are mixed up with dates? . . . Or are dromedaries camels of another sex? . . . Maybe we shouldn't go into that, but if you'll help me out on this date business I'll be terribly obliged.

A. L. L.

GOOD DEED

Our Miss Prim (And how are you this fine morning?) who glories in the title of this department's "downtown correspondent," believes that every traffic cop in Boston has the soul of a Boy Scout.

To substantiate this belief Miss P. would have you know that one forenoon last week, at Boston's busiest intersection, the corner of Washington and Winter sts., she saw one of the truck-and-taxi directors (Number T 276, if you're interested,) on his knees in the gutter painstakingly scooping up the contents of a crate of strawberries which a passing barouche had sideswiped. The officer and the vender carefully dusted off each unsquashed berry and replaced it, while a bihlizer on the sidewalk (Not, we hasten to assure you, our Miss Prim.) yelled:

"Hey, you could do that better with a colander!"

PROVINCETOWN IN BOSTON

Dear Al:

Seeing a crowd gathered about the statue near the Arlington st. entrance to the Public Gardens, I hastened over, think it was a murder, at least . . . Only to find an art class transferring Geo. Washington and his faithful steed to paper . . . From the crowd and the inevitable photographer on the sidelines, getting the class in action, I was sure I had a little manna for the "Manna Bout Town" . . . But it isn't even Feb. 22, so what could you do with an item like that?

PERPLEXED.

Ans.: Nothing.

JOB PROBLEM UP TO INDUSTRY, SAYS SWOPE

Washington, May 6 (AP)—Gerard Swope, president of the General Electric Company, told the International Chamber of Commerce today the responsibility for regularization of employment rests on industry.

"The more complete regularization of employment becomes, the less in proportion is the necessity of providing for unemployment. In both instances, the co-operation and responsibility of the employe should be enlisted so that the solution for the industry may be joint as between management and employe."

Swope said the first problem in planning steady employment was to avoid seasonal and occasional variations and, in industries where these measures are seemingly impossible, to "ameliorate the hardships of unemployment when they arise."

Employment shared interest with wages and production problems on today's program.

Why We Carry 4000 Two Trouser Suits This Spring

During the rather short span of our career, men who knew nothing about us learned that our clothes could be trusted.

They liked our London-designed fashions and our expensive-looking fabrics. And, after they'd worn them, they spread the word among their friends that Bond clothes performed like thoroughbreds—and that they cost quite a bit less!

Today, so many men know this, that even with our enormous stocks it looks as though we haven't enough.

We think this rather pleasing state of affairs is due to the fact that we make the clothes we sell—a most thrifty way of doing business for us, and for our customers.

Tax Boost by Next Congress Predicted

Washington, May 6 (AP)—Either a drastic reduction in government expenditures or an increase in taxes will be necessary at the next session of congress in the opinion of Chairman Wood of the House appropriations committee.

Wood made the assertion today after he had accepted an invitation from President Hoover to attend a conference at the Rapidan camp this week-end with a view to finding means of reducing federal outlays.

Gala Array at Drexel Wedding

By CHOLLY KNICKERBOCKER

New York, May 6 (US)—With the sun beaming gloriously, a gentle spring-time breeze stirring the rarefied air of Park ave., and thousands of spectators lining the sidewalks in front of St. Bartholomew's Church, Edith Kingdon Drexel, the season's most important bride, entered the exclusive edifice to be transformed into Mrs. Henry S. Cram.

The arrival at the church, of the Drexel motorcar containing the beautiful dark-haired and blue-eyed bride, who is heiress to a part of the combined Drexel-Gould millions, almost caused a stampede among the on-lookers who, despite the frantic efforts of the numerous policemen, milled around the canopy, eager to catch a glimpse of Edith in her magnificent and glistening bridal habiliments.

WEARS MOTHER'S GOWN

The several thousand guests who attended the ceremony, solemnized by the rector, the Rev. Dr. Robert Norwood, took advantage of the beautiful weather and wore their newest and most resplendent spring finery.

Young "Tony" Drexel, 2d, who has been showering attentions on the attractive Charlotte Milburn, served as chief usher for his new brother-in-law and had as his assistants, "Jimmy" H. Van Alen, David A. Turnure, Bronson Winthrop, Griscom, Raymond Guest, "Bob" Young, Roy A. Rainey, Jr., J. Earl Potter, "Reggie" Garnett, and Frank Bonsal of Baltimore.

Edith's bridesmaids were Edith S. Cram, a sister of the groom; Pauline Munn, Dorothy Fell, Gertrude Vander Poel, and Isabel Thacher.

Following the bridesmaids came Edith's sister, Marjorie Gould Drexel, a sub-debutante, and the gorgeous Mrs. "Roddy" Wanamaker, of Philadelphia, who will be remembered as the former Alexandra Van Rensselaer Derveraux.

Then came the bride, with her father, Anthony J. Drexel, Jr., wearing the wedding gown of her mother. It was of white satin made with a V-neck and trimmed with a yoke of duchesse point lace. Lace also adorned the long, tight-fitting sleeves, the lace extending from the elbow to the wrist, forming a graceful point.

The long full skirt was edged with lace and the train fell in folds from the skirt. A bridal veil of tulle, edged with duchesse lace, also worn by Mrs. Drexel on her wedding day, and a bouquet of lilies of the valley and white orchids completed Edith's bridal finery.

LEAVES FOR WEST COAST

Mrs. Wanamaker was effectively attired in a gown of white lace over a white satin slip, and embellished with a jade green buckle.

A short white lace sleeveless coat was a feature of Mrs. Wanamaker's costume. She wore a picture hat a jade green straw, slippers of green moire and carried a bouquet of vari-colored flowers including purple and blue iris and yellow daffodils.

Marjorie Gould Drexel was attired in a gown patterned along the lines of the one worn by Mrs. Wanamaker but in place of a vari-colored bouquet she carried a cluster of white iris and lilies of the valley. In her hair she wore a wreath of small daisies.

The bridesmaids were gowned alike in white lace frocks with short coats and all wore jade green hats and carried bouquets similar to Mrs. Wanamaker's.

A reception followed at the Hotel Pierre and Edith and Harry departed on a honeymoon trip that will take them to California and Honolulu.

Satin, Lace in Evening Pajamas

By ANN ARDEN

THE MORE formal type of lounging pajama has been an important trousseau requisite for many seasons now—but this is the first time that pajamas appear under the heading of "evening" clothes. Yet you will not find a single fashionable spring bride who does not have at least one of these delightful new costumes that are taking the country by storm.

* * *

DINNER-PAJAMAS go in for all the materials and details of your most dinner dresses. Lace, satin, flat crepe and chiffons take on the pleats, the flares, the jackets that they do in frocks—the difference is in the skirt where subtle trouser division is achieved.

* * *

NO BRIDE could resist the dinner pajama pictured, of black lace, with round decolletage, much deeper in back; and belt caught with buckle of brilliants. The wide trousers are formed of three deep ruffles of the lace. An Eton jacket of taffetas in American Beauty tone gives decided contrast. The coatee is fitted to the waistline with groups of tucks, has rounded fronts, elbow sleeves, and rolled collar.

THERE IS no doubt about it, Paris is clinging firmly to the pajama theme. Begun as a fad at the resorts, this trend has now been accepted by the leading coutures as a definite part of the wardrobe category.

* * *

MANY of the leading houses are stressing the trousered theme for resort wear—both in actual beach types and in the more formal dinner-pajama type.

Etiquette

Acknowledging Introductions

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

When I attended the last social affair I was introduced to a gentleman and I said: "I am pleased to meet you." Then, on leaving, he said, "I am glad to have met you." What should I have said? RE-DEE.

Dear Reader: When the gentleman was introduced to you this is the correct form, not the lady to the gentleman, you should have said, "How do you do?" This is always correct for the acknowledgment of an introduction.

Then, when he said, when he was leaving, "I am glad to have met you," you should have said, "Thank you. I am very happy to have met you, too," or "Thank you. It has been a great pleasure to meet you, too," or "Thank you. I have enjoyed so much our talk together, and I hope that I am to see you again sometime."

ZEPP TO MEET WILKINS SUB AT POLE

By WALTER DIETZEL
International News Correspondent

Munich, May 6—The German Graf Zeppelin, carrying a complement of 45 persons, will fly to the North Pole in July of this year to keep the strangest rendezvous probably ever suggested in the history of man's exploring of the world, Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander of the Graf, announced today.

The rendezvous will be with the specially equipped submarine Nautilus, in which Sir Hubert Wilkins, noted explorer, proposes to reach the North Pole by navigating under the polar icecap.

TO MEET AT POLE

The two strange craft will meet at or near the Pole about the middle of July, Dr. Eckener said. The Graf plans to anchor on the ice-cap, and carries scientific equipment, ice sledges, boats and other materials for making extensive surveys in the vicinity.

Dr. Eckener announced that the flight is being made in association with the Hearst newspapers. Karl von Weigand, chief foreign correspondent of the Hearst newspapers, and Lady Grace Drummond Hay, will make the flight and will report it, Dr. Eckener said.

Scientists, Arctic explorers and experts in air and surface nativation will be included in the passenger list. Four countries, Germany, the United States, Russia and England will be represented, Lieut.-Comdr. Smith of the United States Coast Guard, an expert on Arctic ice conditions, will represent the United States, and Prof. Samoilovich, who was aboard the Soviet icebreaker Krassin which went to the rescue of the Nobile expedition in 1928, will represent Soviet Russia.

CONFIDENT OF SUCCESS.

"The rendezvous is expected to take place about the middle of July," Dr. Eckener said. "The Graf will start from its base at Franz Josefland when the nautilus is two days' distance from the pole. We will carry a great deal of polar equipment, ice sledges, boats, clothing and provisions for all emergencies.

"The flight is intended to clarify the question whether the airship is the most appropriate means for transporting land exploration expeditions to the Arctic, to take them back when they have finished their explorations, or to relieve previous expeditions.

"I am confident of the success of our flight. Otherwise I would not undertake the trip. The polar equipment we are taking is largely to ally the fears of the public."

Experiments will be made with an electric ice anchor for the Graf. This anchor will melt itself into the ice and when the current is shut off will freeze solid, thus giving the airship a firm anchorage. The anchor will be used, it is said, in event the crew of Sir Hubert's Nautilus is not available as a landing crew when the Graf reaches the rendezvous place.

GANG CHIEF DIES FROM WOUNDS

New York, May 13 (INS)—Morris Fishbein, Brooklyn gangster and racketeer and one of the scattered gang of "Joe the Boss" Masseria, which took to cover after Masseria was recently killed, died today. He was shot eight times by two assailants who surprised him while he was visiting at the home of a cousin.

Fishbein, police said, had been involved in at least five rackets in Brooklyn, the authorities said, including the slot machine game and the laundry racket.

The two killers evidently had been tipped off that the gangster was to visit at the home of relatives. They met him in his cousin's apartment and both opened fire. The assasins pitched their pistols into a highway as they fled.

Fishbein had been shot at least three times during his career. He had been arrested almost a score of times.

Notes and Gossip About People You Know

WOMAN IN RACE

Mrs. Eleanor Creed L'Ecuyer, one of the best known residents of the Meeting House Hill section of Dorchester, plans to be a candidate for the City Council from Ward 13 this fall. A large group of friends have organized a club to support her candidacy.

PAINTERS ARE NAMED

Arthur C. Cooper of 25 Mt. Pleasant ave., Roxbury, and Thomas W. McManus of 84 Mt. Vernon st., Dorchester, have been appointed painters in the traffic commission for a period of three months by Mayor Curley.

TOBIN IS APPOINTED

James Tobin of 107 Calumet st., Roxbury, has been appointed a locksmith and carpenter in the election department by Mayor Curley.

"FLIER" MANION

"Charlie" Manion, chauffeur to Mayor Curley, hopes to be an aviator some day. He plans to enroll at a flying school of the East Boston Airport and believes he will have little difficulty in getting a pilot's license.

COUGHLIN NAVAL MAN

Capt. "Bill" Coughlin, candidate for City Council from East Boston, is an old navy man. He was master of the maneuvering boat of the largest precise fleet in Long Island Sound for a number of years. "Bill" is confident he will be elected.

KOCH MAY RUN

Robert Gordon Koch of Forest Hills is being urged by his friends to be a candidate for City Council from Ward 19. He is a recent graduate of Suffolk Law School and is active in the affairs of St. James Council, Knights of Columbus. City Councilor Peter A. Murray, incumbent, will seek re-election.

PAGES PLAN TRIP

Vacation planning is on full swing at the State House. House pages are talking of a fliver trip to the West coast. But those who have listened to plans of former pages year after year are betting they won't go.

SENATORS CHUMMY

Senator Donald W. Nicholson of Wareham and Senator William F. Shanahan of Swampscott are getting quite chummy. Their colleagues would not be surprised to see them getting out the 8 ounce gloves.

MURPHY ON JOB

John M. Murphy of Hyde Park, newest member of Governor Ely's office staff, is a former Georgetown football star. Thomas M. Ray of Lynn, who went up a peg when Murphy was taken on, is also from the same university.

LEGISLATURE'S SCORE

The legislature this year, insofar as committee work goes, is exactly at the same percentage it was a year ago, in the number of bills reported. The percentage is 85 per cent.

Yale's Oldest Graduate

New Haven, Ct., May 6 (INS)—Dr. Virgil M. Dow, 98, Yale's oldest graduate, had today practically emerged from a serious illness that extended throughout the winter. His family announced that he is now able to leave bed.

150 GOLD STAR MOTHERS OFF FOR FRANCE

New York, May 6 (AP)—After being told the whole nation was proud of them and their sacrifice, 150 Gold Star mothers sailed for France today on the Liner George Washington.

They comprised the first 1931 contingent to depart on a pilgrimage to the graves of the American World War dead.

In a bon voyage ceremony before the vessel sailed from Hoboken, Frederick H. Payne, assistant Secretary of War, told the mothers their trip was idealistic in conception as that of their sons.

"The spirit in which this opportunity is proferred by our government, and is accepted by you mothers of those American soldiers who sleep eternally beneath the sod of foreign lands, has its root deep in the hearts of all our people," Mr. Payne said.

"Their pride in you and their love for you are equalled only by their hope that in this journey you will find a comforting peace of mind to ease the burden you must forever carry."

Representatives of the Army and Navy, state and municipal governments and Paul W. Chapman, president of the United States Lines, were present.

674 Names Dropped from Church Rolls

South Hadley Falls, May 6 (AP)—A total of 674 names were dropped from the rolls of churches in the Hampden Association of Congregational Churches in the last year, it was reported today in the annual meeting of the association by the scribe, Rev. John B. Lewis of Springfield.

This step was taken, Mr. Lewis said, rather than continue with padded church membership lists.

9 NOVA SCOTIAN FISHERS LET IN UNDER BOND

Providence, May 6 (AP)—Officials in Washington have lifted the ban on Canadian fishermen enough to permit Tallman & Mack, Newport netters, to bring nine experienced net men here from Nova Scotia under $500 bail each.

Under the ruling, the fisherman brought here by that firm must return to Canada at the end of a stay not to exceed six months. Bail will be defaulted for each fisherman failing to return at the close of the visitation period.

It was represented by the fishing firm that it was not possible to get American labor to do the work of pulling nets.

Knee-deep in a swirling salmon stream—or even deeper in some office problem—you relish the taste of a good cigarette. And the better and milder the tobaccos, the better the taste and the milder the smoke—that's bound to follow. What you taste in Chesterfield is the flavor and aroma of the tobaccos themselves. Chesterfield's blend and cross-blend gives you a fragrance and delicacy you'll find in no other cigarette.

FOR NINETEEN years, our Research Department has kept intimate touch with every new development of Science that could be applied to the manufacture of cigarettes. During this period there has been no development of tested value or importance to the smoker which we have not incorporated into the making of Chesterfield cigarettes.

But what a costly saving it may be! What guarantee have you of the hygienic safety of this substitute, if you know nothing of its makers? Is it fit for this personal use? How was it made? Where?

When your choice is Kotex, you're backed by medical approval. The best hospitals use it. They appreciate the splendid purity of Kotex, the exacting care with which it is made.

You should never consider sanitary protection of lower standards. Insist on Kotex. Genuine Kotex.

ANN HARDING WILL STAR IN "WOMEN NEED LOVE"

"Tumult and Shouting" May Be Next Feature by Marion Davies

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Universal Service Motion Picture Editor
Copyright, 1931, by Universal Service, Inc.

LOS ANGELES, May 6—That prolific author, Ursula Parrott, must write while she sleeps. She has just sold Charles Rogers "Women Need Love," a story for Ann Harding. This will be published in book form before "Tumult and Shouting."

"Tumult and Shouting" may be a Marion Davies story. At least Miss Parrott told me that she would be interested in seeing Marion play the part, and Marion has expressed a desire to read it. Miss Parrott had Ann Harding in mind when she wrote "Women Need Love." Miss Harding only reaches home with her husband a few days ago and apparently all Louella O. Parsons is sunshine and roses with her and R-KO-Pathe, for she starts work on "The Little Play in the Temple" May 18, with Robert Milton directing.

It is be called "Devotion" and I think we will all be glad for the other title is so difficult to remember.

PRETTY BLONDE Lola Lane who has more than her share of troubles is at last seeing daylight. First she lost all of her savings in the failure of a Hollywood bank, then she had her difficulties with James Cruze and was unable to make new pictures. But apparently all has been forgiven and forgotten, for word has been received that she has signed a new contract for three pictures. Perhaps when the Cruze Company found she was making a picture at Universal, "The Whole Town's Talking," they decided that if she was valuable to another company she was valuable to them. It often works that way. Lola and Lew Ayres are two of the most popular youngsters in Hollywood.

WESLEY RUGGLES is certainly robbing the cradle for his leading lady. Little Anita Louise, age 15 but a talented actress, plays the lead in "Are These Our Children?" opposite John Darrow. Don't for a moment think I am speaking of a new picture for this is the same "cock-eyed youth" which Wesley wrote before he had a nervous breakdown. He is back now on the Radio lot looking a bit wan, to be sure, but improved. He worked so hard on "Cimarron" he was compelled to take a rest. "Are These Our Children?" is a story of the younger generation and not a flaming youth thing but telling a little something about these youngsters and their problems.

THINGS WE hear of interest in Hollywood: "For the next five years Florence Britton won't have to worry about her next pictures. Sam Goldwyn has signed her on a long-term contract. He put her, an unknown girl, into "Devil To Pay," and now he thinks well enough of her to try to guide her screen career the next few years. Lila Lee is no much better that she expects to sit up next week. Lily Damita, who is on the Radio lot for keeps, will have Geoffrey Kerr as her leading man in "The Sphinx Has Spoken." Remarkable how Lily has blossomed forth since she left the stage in New York. Bill Beaudine is using two of his youngsters in "Penrod and Sam," Helen, aged 16, and Bumps, 11. Wonder how well they will obey their dad. Adrienne Ames, New York society girl, has been signed by Paramount on a long-term contract. We don't know the lady, but reports are she is very easy to look at.

ONE OF the busiest actresses in Hollywood is Irene Rich. She and Hedda Hopper seem to be in a class by themselves when it comes to playing young mother roles or dignified society matrons. Irene is now at Universal where she is playing in "Waterloo Bridge." James Whale's next picture. She is in good company, too, for Rose Hobart plays the lead with Doris Lloyd and Kent Douglas in important parts.

SNAPSHOTS OF Hollywood collected at random: SIDNEY TOLER and his mother visiting the Hollywood Hospital; WESLEY RUGGLES walking on the beach at Malibu Beach, accompanied by a pretty girl. JOAN BENNET and MRS. C. GARDNER SULLIVAN sunning themselves on the beach at the same place. MRS. HUNT STROMBERG moving into the TOD BROWNING Malibu House while the BROWNINGS are in Europe. HARRY RAPF, HUNT STROMBERG and ROBERT LEONARD playing bridge in the open. FRED BEETSON entertaining his mother and father at Malibu. THE BEETSONS, having been married 53 years, have moved to California to be with their son. LILYAN TASHMAN in another smart creation, lunching at the Brown Derby. GEORGE K. ARTHUR back in town again. That's all today. See you tomorrow!

STARS OF "DIRIGIBLE" SUPPLY THRILLS APLENTY

Another great film epic of the skies is registering big at the Majestic this week, where "Dirigible" is packing them in. In this story of love and a flight to the Antarctic regions Jack Holt has the star role.

Jane Cowl Coming Soon to Plymouth in Comedy

At the Plymouth, commencing Monday evening, May 18, J. M. Welch will present Jane Cowl, in "Art and Mrs. Bottle," following its successful engagements on Broadway and in the principal cities of the United States.

"Art and Mrs. Bottle" is a smart English comedy by Benn W. Levy, author of "Mrs. Moonlight," now current in New York, and adapter of "Topaze," one of last season's outstanding successes. The vehicle for Miss Cowl wittily exposes the nonsense of the "art for art's sake" cult in its claim of special privilege and as ultra code—a theme that has long been crying out for expression.

In support of Miss Cowl will be seen the same cast that appeared with her at Maxine Elliott's theater on Broadway and during the long tour, headed by Leon Quartermaine and Walter Kingsford in featured roles. The play has been staged by Clifford Brooke in an unusually attractive setting by Raymond Sovey.

Sutherland to Direct

Eddie Sutherland has been borrowed from Paramount to direct Eddie Cantor in "Palmy Days," the new comedy which will be produced by Samuel Goldwyn for United Artists.

Pops Tonight

Hungarian March, "Rakoczy," Berlioz; Overture to "Oberon," Weber; Minuet (for string orchestra), Bolzoni; Fantasia, "Carmen," Bizet; Tales from Johann Strauss Korngold; Londonderry Air, Harty; "Les Preludes," Symphonic Poem No. 3, Liszt; "Girl Crazy," selection, Gershwin; Czardas from the Opera, "Ghost of the Warrior," Grossman; The Ride of the Valkyries, Wagner.

"Miracle Woman"

Conductor Will Give Concerts

The Pan American Association of Composers has delegated Nicolas Slonimsky, conductor of the Boston Chamber Orchestra, to give two concerts of American music in Paris on next June 6 and June 11. The programs will represent the works of North Americans, Charles Ives (Connecticut), Carl Ruggles (Vermont), Henry Cowell (California) Adolf Weiss (New York), Wallingford Riegger (Georgia), Cubans; Alejandro Caturia, Pedro San Juan, Amadeo Roldan, and Carlos Chavez. Works by Edgar Varese and Carlos Salzedo who have identified themselves with American music, will also be performed.

Franklin Park Cast Scores

The annual spring fiesta of Yiddish drama finds Maurice Schwartz and his company of the Yiddish Art Theater of New York ensconced at the Franklin Park Theater for the current week.

In place of the gruesome tragedies with which they have "entertained" their audiences in the past these admirable artists opened last night with "Uncle Moses," a comedy drama adapted by Mr. Schwartz from Sholom Ash's novel of the same name, dealing with slavery and strikes in a typical East Side sweat shop of 30 years ago. A parallel theme is the love of the owner of the shop for the daughter of one of his slaves, their marriage and its subsequent quasi-tragic ending.

Mr. Schwartz is the portrayer of the male side of this December and May union, and his characterization is extraordinarily keen and vital. Masha, the other half, is sympathetically played by Stella Adler.

"Uncle Moses" will be repeated tonight and tomorrow night. For Friday and Saturday evenings and Saturday matinee "Riverside Drive" will be on the bill, while the company ends its stay on Sunday night with "The Man with the Portfolio."

HAPPY TO "DIE"

Beery Glad 'Secret Six' Finished

By HARRIS MORGAN

When Wallace Beery speaks, he speaks in italics. His staccato style of utterance, his positive meanings in short sentences shot at one like bombshells, make an interview with him a thing to be remembered.

He was discussing "The Secret Six," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's drama of American city life, now at Loew's State. In it he plays the sinister Scorpio.

"If anyone likes the character I play I'll be disappointed," he remarked. "I tried to play a character that I would hate in real life."

"But isn't it a human character like Butch in 'The Big House?'" he was asked.

"Human—yes. But in a different way. Butch was a good-natured ruffian who only got tough when he had to. This fellow Scorpio is a gunman and a killer. Dangerous as a snake. Deserving no mercy or sympathy. There are dozens like him in every city. They ought to be strung up. I was glad when they led me to execution in this picture. Sounds funny—an actor glad he's going to be hanged. But I like that. We didn't try to glorify the gangster or surround him with romance. I think the picture's a darned good suggestion for a lot of cities."

Beery grinned the famous Beery grin.

"I put humor into Scorpio—yes. Had to to lighten him up. But I tried to make this so people would laugh at him, and not with him. I don't think anyone can play a person wholly bad or wholly good—but in this type of character I couldn't find more than a tiny spark of anything good."

FAY RETURNS

King George on the Throne 21 Years

Windsor, England, May 6 (AP)—The ringing of bells in the royal chapel and Windsor Church reminded the people that today was the 21st anniversary of the accession of King George V to the throne of England.

Tobacco Taxes to Total $440,000,000

Washington, May 6 (INS)—Despite the business depression and tremendous losses in most sources of Government revenue, tobacco taxes for the fiscal year ending June 30 will amount to about $440,000,000, a drop of but $10,000,000 from the peak year of 1930.

From figures so far available it appeared certain the tobacco tax collection in 1931 would exceed any other year excepting 1930.

Four Are Injured in Marlboro Crash

Marlboro, May 6 (INS)—Mrs. Mary Schmais of New Britain, Ct., and three other persons were seriously injured today when two automobiles collided at Lincoln and Pleasant sts.

Mrs. Schmais was with the three others in an automobile driven by Joseph P. Denehy of this city, all of whom were injured.

New Bridge Wipes Out Voting Districts

New York, May 6 (AP)—The board of elections today revealed that two thickly populated districts had been wiped out of Manhattan by the erection of the new George Washington bridge, over the Hudson connecting New York and New Jersey.

Many house were demolished to make way for span's approaches.

Laconia Girl Dies in Georgia Crash

Ashburn, Ga., May 6 (AP)—Miss Katherine Roche of Largo, Fla., was killed and three other persons injured when their automobile skidded on the pavement north of here yesterday and overturned on a curve.

The party was en route from North Carolina to Largo, Fla. Miss Roche formerly was a nurse in Laconia, N. H.

Indian Refuses to Take Chief's Job

Muskogee, Okla., May 6 (AP)—Nobody is going to call Chili Fish chief. He has refused to be boss of the Seminoles even at the request of President Hoover.

The job was mostly for the purpose of signing a deed, but Chili Fish thinks the government has closed a school it shouldn't have.

Your Mother Goes —or I go!

A husband's own true story of how his wife and his mother—living under a single roof—loving him with equal fierceness—succeeded only in dragging his soul through hell

AN orphan—Flo called herself—that evening we met in the city—strangers—lonely. After that night—I lived for her passionate lips—lips that enticed me into marriage.

Penniless—we left the city—went to my small-town home—and to my poor, old widowed mother who loved me more than life. Haughty, cold, selfish at heart—Flo disliked Ma—but smiled on her—when she refused to live with us—after buying our furniture with money she'd saved for her burial!

Flo spent wildly—kept me broke—baby came—and Flo took pneumonia. When Ma sold her house to pay our bills—she had to live with us. Two women—one roof—that's when hell cut loose!

Kind, noble—Ma did all the work—never complained. Flo sulked, nagged—even cursed Ma for kissing baby—for little things—for nothing at all. I couldn't understand. I suffered—stormed—but with her ravishing body—Flo would burn to cinders all defense for Ma.

Then Ma took neuralgia—couldn't work. That capped the climax. Flo kept growing nastier—UNTIL—that day Ma broke a pitcher—trivial thing—a molehill that flared into a mountain. "Get out—out of my home, you worthless hag"—Flo screamed and, swinging on me—"This roof's too small—she's got to go, Eddie—or out I go—this minute!"

"Stop," I roared. "You're cruel as a snake." Flo moved toward me—voluptuous arms circled my neck—"Ma's sick," I struggled on, "No friends—no place to go—she'd die! Before you drive her out"—Flo's lips sought mine—"I'll see you—damn you—I'll see you—you. . . ."

Which woman did Eddie choose? Did his slavish desire for Flo once more tear into shreds his sense of justice—send into the streets this aged mother he loved and worshiped—his own mother who worked, sacrificed, gave all to make them happy?

Or, here in this thundering climax, did destiny force Eddie to drive from his home this wife who had made him so happy—had borne his child—and whose embraces were still an ecstasy he craved like dope?

You simply must read for yourself MY MOTHER AND MY WIFE—a helpless husband's own true story of how his wife and mother—loving him with equal fierceness—dragged his soul through hell and how he finally solved this terrible domestic tangle, the like of which has wrecked a million homes.

EINSTEIN LINKS KING IN MURDER OF PROFESSOR

By OTTO D. TOLISCHUS
International News Correspondent

Berlin, May 6—A sensation was caused here today by publication of a joint letter written by Dr. Albert Einstein, the world famous scientist, and the novelist, Heinrich Mann accusing the Jugoslavian government of complicity in the murder of the Croatian Prof. Milan Sufflay in Zagreb on February 18.

LINKS KING IN PLOT

The letter was sent to the Paris headquarters of the International League for Human Rights, where preparations were immediately launched for an official protest to Belgrade.

In the communication, which was sharply worded and pointed in its attack, Einstein and Mann charged that King Alexander of Jugoslavia and Serbian officials "encouraged" the slaying of Prof. Sufflay, and named his actual murderer as a member of a "terrorist organization" known as "Young Jugoslavia."

"It must not happen that murder can be unscrupulously used as a political weapon," the letter read. "It must not happen that murderers can be elevated to the status of international saints."

THREATS BASED

Prof. Sufflay, a leader in Croatian affairs, was struck down as he was walking through the streets of Croatia, a few weeks after a visit paid by King Alexander to the capital.

At the time of the king's visit, the letter charged, many prominent Croats received letters signed "for king and country" in which their lives and those of their families were threatened if they uttered any protest while the monarch was there.

SCHOOL CADETS VIE FOR HONOR

Cadets of five Boston high schools vied for honors today in their annual military drills for individual and company honors.

Charlestown High, Dorchester High, South Boston High and Public Latin School will drill for honors, the other schools of the city being scheduled for competition on May 12 and 15.

From today's winners, leaders of the regiments concerned will be selected for the annual street parade of the Boston cadets, scheduled for June 5.

Labor Urged to Join War on Bootlegs

Washington, May 6 (AP)—The American Federation of Labor was asked today to aid a group recently organized here "to unite the law-abiding elements of the country against bootlegging, reardless of their opinions on prohibition, and to promote temperance through education."

The appeal was made to the federation's executive council by Mrs. Rushmore Patterson of New York and Washington on behalf of the citizens' protective league.

EGGS FOR VOTES, WINS, LOSES

Winona, Minn., May 6 (AP)—During Mat Wagner's recent successful campaign for mayor 600 dozen eggs were distributed to the public at 1 cent a dozen. The market price was then 16 cents.

District Judge F. W. Senn has ordered him removed from office on the petition of 71 voters, who alleged he had violated the corrupt practices act.

ARCHDUKE WON LOVE OF ILEANA IN AIR ROMANCE

Bucharest, Rumania, May 6 (AP)—Princess Ileana and Archduke Anton of Austria, principals of a romance of the air, are visiting various places in Germany by airplane.

After the betrothal ceremony at Umkirch castle Monday night, they took off in the Archduke's plane from Freising yesterday and went to Friedrichshafen to view the Graf Zeppelin. They plan other short trips in the next few days before Anton returns to Spain and Ileana goes to Venice with her mother, Queen Marie.

A mutual fascination for aviation is said to have been Cupid's weapon in the case of Ileana and Anton. They met at Umkirch castle at Easter time and improved their acquaintance by daily flights about the countryside. A similar delight for motorcycling and skiing cemented the attachment.

It is likely that the Archduke will make an aviator of his intended wife. In addition to being an accomplished flier and plane engineer, he is a keen instructor of flying and already has given "wings" to 25 persons.

Hundreds of messages of congratulation are pouring in here from commoner and aristocrat. The details of the marriage in June have not yet been made.

Puppy Steals Fried Egg Off the Plate of Pres. Hoover

Edwin Aiger, reporter for the National Broadcasting Co., has told over the radio that a puppy playing with Mr. Hoover and his grandchildren pilfered a fried egg from the presidential plate.

DR. MICHELSON GROWS WEAKER

Pasadena, Cal., May 6 (AP)—Dr. Albert A. Michelson, 79, distinguished physicist and the first in this country to win the Nobel prize for scientific achievement, is growing gradually weaker. Attending physicians have expressed a fear he may not recover.

Five Found Slain in Home of Farmer

Blue Mountain, Miss., May 6 (AP)—Five persons were found slain in their home near here today and authorities expressed the belief they were killed by A. W. Carter, a farmer, whose body was located a short distance from the other four.

In addition to Carter's body, that of his wife, their two daughters and a woman roomer in their home were found in the house.

About people you know in Boston stores

By FRANCES BAIRD

James McDermott, store superintendent of Houghton's, is so enthusiastic over the 1931 store baseball team that he spends his noon hour coaching the team on the Common diamond.

The team, just organized, is being managed and coached by McDermott. The lineup is: Barney Klayman, captain; John Shaw, sixth floor, catcher; Jerry Moore, sixth floor, pitcher; Barney Klayman, boys' clothing, first base; Joe Crowley, fourth floor, second base; Jack Crowley, fifth floor, shortstop; Harold McCarthy, shipping room, third base; Robert Stillman, sixth floor, left field; William Sullivan, street floor, center field, and Frank Phillips, downstairs shipping, right field.

Substitute players include Ted McCarthy and Tom Hogan, third floor; James Nagle, second floor; Joe Lynch, seventh floor, and Clifford Berger, sixth floor. The team plays the store warehouse nine tonight on the Common.

SHEPARD'S BALL TONIGHT

Every store associate of Shepard's received a telegram yesterday before the store closed, inviting him or her to attend the annual May ball at the Copley-Plaza this evening. Fred Harking, advertising manager, is responsible for this novel idea, carried out by three Western Union messenger boys, circulating it every department of the store.

The general committee in charge of the ball, with Miss Winifred Stanford as chairman, includes Mrs. Mary Usiak, president of the Mutual Aid Association; Merritt Thompson, store manager; Mrs. E. C. Merrill, William Madden, Herbert Uline, general merchandise manager; and Edgar Gengenbach, director of publicity.

Mrs. Louise V. Raridan, chairman of the reception committee; Miss Katharine Donovan, in charge of tickets, and Daniel Hatch, display manager of the store, have charge of the decorations.

BRIDE SURPRISES FRIENDS

When 100 store friends of Miss Bessie Kaner of Gilchrist's stationery department gathered for a "surprise shower-reception" at Charlotte Manor in Dorchester last night they were themselves surprized to find a bride instead of a prospective bride. Miss Kaner became the bride of David Darish of Chelsea, in a late afternoon ceremony and received her friends at a party arranged by her sister, Miss Mary Kaner, and Miss Jessie Darish. The wedding data had previously been announced as June 17.

JORDAN'S BUYERS TO SAIL

Don Cady, buyer of men's furnishings for Jordan's Men's store, and Richard Edwards, merchandise manager, are sailing for Italy on Friday, May 8, on a buying trip. They will be gone six or eight weeks. These two are inseparable companions, and are known in the store as "Damon and Pythias."

STROMER TO PLAY

Jack Stromer, 20, employe in Filene's mailing department, achieved his ambition to play in the Boston Civic Symphony Orchestra when he was chosen to play second violin in the concert to be given by that organization tomorrow evening. Joseph Wagner is conductor of the orchestra. Sixty-four store members will attend the concert.

MISS HIGGINS IN NEW ROLE

Miss Grace Higgins, recently connected with C. Crawford Holdidge's as advertising manager, and formerly for years with R. H. White's, is receiving congratulations on her clever article entitled "Famous Firsts" in the current issue of the Ladies' Home Journal. It is the third of a series which she is writing for the magazine.

"BARBARA WEST" RESIGNS

Mrs. Phoebe Parks, known as Barbara West in Shepard's mail order department, has resigned as head of that department. Miss Dorothea Luce has been promoted from supervisor of special orders to become Barbara West. Miss Luce has been connected with the store for several years. The mail order department has been transferred from the publicity division to the management division of the store.

BABE RUTH AS I KNOW HIM

FROM REFORM SCHOOL TO NATIONAL IDOL

By Michael H. Crowley

Supt. of Boston Police

BABE RUTH, THE SLUGGER, ALWAYS PAL OF CHILDREN

(The police superintendent yesterday paid tribute to the Babe, who stood up under official harassments and bludgeoned his way back again to the top. Today Supt. Crowley goes on with his intimate story.)

(Copyright, 1931, by the Boston Evening American)

One of the remarkable things about Babe Ruth, and incidentally this trait would serve him well as a detective, is his exceptional memory over a long term of years.

The Babe can go back 10, 12 and 14 years and recall any game in which he took part. He will tell you, almost without error, just how that particular game was won or lost, what he himself did in the game and what most of the other players did.

They have tried this game out on him time after time, when the boys sit down for a fanning bee, shooting question after question at him. But he never fails with the details.

Although he was only a lad of even when he started at St Mary s Industrial School at Baltimore, the Babe can tell you in amazing detail of all his experiences there that were outside of routine happenings, and he can carry you from the day he started entirely through his 12 years as a "reform school" boy.

In Reform School

He's Honest and Tells Things as They Were

That is another thing about the Babe, incidentally—his honesty. Invariably he calls St. Mary's a reform school and has none of the false pride that many men would hide behind if their boyhood had been spent in a similar institution.

"St. Mary's was a reform school," Babe once said to me seriously, "and it's a reform school now. Why make any bones about that. We were tough kids, that's all, or we were wild—call it anything you like. Maybe some of us just had too much pep for our parents.

"But the best thing that ever happened to me was being sent to St. Mary's when I was seven. My mother couldn't handle me and my father was a big, good-natured chap who didn't have the heart to discipline his son.

"When I got into St. Mary's, it didn't take the good brothers there long to find some good in me, and they brought the best part of me out, just as they brought it out in the other kids."

Remembers Them

Babe Sends Presents to Brothers Who Aided Him

Incidentally, Brother Matthias, the brother at St. Mary's credited with having given the Babe his real baseball foundation, has never been forgotten by Ruth, and the others who aided him haven't been forgotten.

The remembrances sent them from time to time would amaze you, for whenever the whim strikes Ruth he quietly shoots along some present to one or another of his benefactors—and says nothing about it.

Because Ruth is a huge fellow

STATE PAYS OUT GAS TAX JUNE 1

The cities and towns of Massachusetts will receive $2,720,750 from the state for highway work on June 1, Tax Commissioner Henry F. Long announced today.

This is an advance distribution of their share of what the state expects to collect on the additional tax of one cent on gasoline.

Boston leads in the distribution with $678,452.26, while Gay Head on Martha's Vinyard brings up the tail end with $52.30.

Worcester will get the second largest amount, $124,044.30; Springfield, $68,648.68; New Bedford, $67,391.59; Fall River, $56,374.27; Newton, $51,692.45; Lynn, $50,830.97; Lowell, $48,843.75; Quincy, $43,767.01; Somerville, $45,183.09.

Other Greater Boston payments will be: Brookline, $33,498.03; Arlington, $19,741.45; Belmont, $12,341.68; Beverly, $16,708.33; Braintree, $5445.68; Chelsea, $22,774.58; Everett, $23,441.63; Malden, $25,807.70, Medford, $28,741.09; Melrose, $12,550.86, Peabody, $9648.47; Revere, $14,904.14; Salem, $21,127.28, Waltham, $20,525.88; Wellesley, $10,668.23; Watertown, $19,427.66; Woburn, $8053.47; Stoneham, $4296.57; Weymouth, $15,008.73.

Schiff's Body Sent to Philadelphia

The body of Samuel Schiff Brookline stationer, who died Sunday night, was shipped to Philadelphia today for burial in the family plot. Mr. Schiff, who was 65, was president of Austaco, Inc and had been engaged in the stationery business for 35 years.

Charles B. Burleigh Dies at Malden Home

Charles B Burleigh, 69, of Summer st. Malden, former New England district manager for the General Electric Co. and long prominent in Masonic and engineering circles, died at his home early today after a short illness

Mr. Burleigh is survived by his widow, Mrs. Nellie Belding Burleigh, and one son, Lieut.-Col Theodore F. Burleigh, U. S. A., of Winchester.

Ely to Speak

Governor Ely is scheduled to speak in both Worcester and Springfield tonight.

GOV. ELY MAY SEND MESSAGE ON OLD AGE ACT

WANTS HOUSE ON RECORD ON TAX METHOD

Chief Executive Suggested a Duty on Cigarettes if Poll Tax Boost Is Rejected

Gov. Joseph B. Ely may send a special message to the legislature relative to the financing of the Old Age Assistance Act if the solons do not pass suitable legislation to raise the necessary funds.

"I do not favor any particular method of raising the necessary money to take care of the Old Age Assistance Act" said the governor today. "I have no preference. I am not against an increase in the poll tax or a cigarette tax but have taken no definite position.

WANTS HOUSE ON RECORD

"In justice to the public, the legislature, having placed the Old Age act on the books, is obligated to make a strenuous effort to raise funds to meet it. If the legislature can't do it then we will face a different situation.

"When I talked with Speaker of the House Leverett Saltonstall yesterday along the subject I told him I would insist that the House of Representatives be put on record, for or against the increased poll tax or cigarette tax methods. If the legislature refuses to pass either I will then be in a position to send a special message."

The governor said that during his talk with Speaker Saltonstall yesterday, he told the speaker that if the House wouldn't accept an increased poll tax ($3 for men and $2 for women) it might try a sales tax on cigarettes or some other plan

SEEK INFORMATION

Gov. Ely said he also talked with the state budget commission to find out how much the old age act cost the state.

In addition he revealed that he has sent telegrams to the city and town officials of communities of 5000 or more to find out what they are doing to finance the act. He said that no places have provided for the matter in their budgets but that some large cities like Lawrence are waiting for the state to act first

HONOR DEAN ON ANNIVERSARY

Dean T. Lawrence Davis, of Boston University School of Practical Arts and Letters is at least 35 or so, but today the students gave him a birthday cake with 12 candles.

It was the 12th anniversary of the founding of the school and the same anniversary of Dean Davis' appointment as dean.

Ruth Brunell, of New Haven, Ct. was awarded the Chalmers cup for the most service to her class in student days and Miss Marion Stanford was the Stetson cup as the best all-around athlete.

Other awards were made to Katherine Andrews, of South Weymouth, for the best poem; Lois Danforth, of Swampscott, for the best essay and Anna S. Bourne, of Milton, for the best short story of the year

Municipal Building in Charlestown

The legislative committee on municipal finance today reported favorably a bill introduced by Rep. Robert L. Lee of Charlestown, authorizing the City of Boston to borrow $250,000 outside the debt limit for construction of a municipal building in Charlestown

FATHER KILLED, SON LIES DYING

While visiting her son, Robert, whose name is on the danger list at City Hospital Mrs. Gertrude Keyes of Lithgow st. Dorchester today received the news that her husband Edward B. Keyes, 56, had been killed at work in the Consolidge yards of the Boston Edison Works.

Keyes was working on a lumber pile when a heavy beam swung suddenly on a point striking him in the head Fellow workers rushed him to Cambridge Relief Hospital where he died soon after arrival.

Robert, youngest of his three children, was struck by an automobile in Codman sq Dorchester last Saturday, suffering injuries which may result in death

600 Pupils Just Miss Seeing Fire

Six hundred pupils in the new Southern Junior High School, Vinal ave., Somerville, were a bit indignant today when they were released at 2 p. m., only to find they had been cheated by 10 minutes of the opportunity of watching a fire across the street.

The blaze was beneath the front steps of the house at 3 and 5 Vinal ave. and is believed to have been started from a carelessly-thrown cigarette or by children with matches. The damage was only $10

Dorchester Man Is Killed by Beam

Edward B. Keyes, 56, of Lithgow st., Dorchester was injured fatally today when he was struck by a heavy piece of timber in the yards of the Boston Edison Works. Bunney st. Cambridge.

Keyes was working on a lumber pile when a beam swung suddenly on the hoist, striking him on the head. Fellow employees rushed him to Cambridge Relief Hospital where he died soon after arrival.

CHIEF REFUSES TO DRAG PONDS

Chief of Police Rowland Mansfield of Saugus today refused the request of Mrs. Joan Skahan that ponds in the vicinity of that town be dragged for the body of her husband whom she believes to be a suicide.

"I have information that Skahan was seen leaving town in a car last Friday, the day he disappeared," Chief Mansfield said. "I am positive that Mrs. Skahan's fears are ungrounded."

Skahan who holds the contract for garbage collection in Saugus has been depressed over financial difficulties for some time, according to his wife.

MRS. SELLEW TELLS STORY OF QUARRELS

Husband Displayed Preference for Housekeeper, She Declares on Stand

Francis L. Sellew, state engineer, was willing that his bride of six months should leave him, but was afraid of losing their maid, Mrs. Sellew testified in Middlesex probate court today.

Mrs. Sellew, who was for 10 years secretary to her husband in the Public Works Department in the State House before their marriage Dec. 28, 1929, is suing for separate support.

The maid for whom her husband displayed a preference was Mrs. Thelma Mortenson, Mrs. Sellew testified.

On June 6, 1930, after they had retired in their Natick home, the Sellews entered into a discussion about Mrs. Sellew leaving the house, the wife said

QUARRELED OVER MAID

"He put his hands on my throat and I thought he was going to finish me. I said to him, 'That's easy enough—188 pounds against 82.'

After this discussion had ended and quiet reigned in the bedroom she said she saw Sellew get up and go to the door of the maid's room She said she heard the maid say, "What's as though she had just awakened, and that her husband closed the door and came back to bed.

The next morning, she said, then overheard Mrs. Mortenson say She testified Mrs. Mortenson would never take any orders from her and told her to keep her nose out of running the house.

Mrs. Mortenson, she said, accused her of talking about her to Sellew's brother's wife.

THREATENED WITH PAN

"Why did you come here anyway? You know you're not wanted. Why don't you get out?" she quoted the maid as asking her.

Her husband, she said, chimed in with

"That's right, give it to her."

The maid threatened her with a saucepan, she testified, and Sellew took it away from her. Then, Mrs Sellew said, her husband told her

"You can get out. All I'm afraid of is the night time."

Mrs Sellew said her husband stood with his arm around the maid's waist and told her he'd do anything for her. The wife left home that night and went into Norwood Hospital for a month, she said. During that time, she testified, Sellew never visited her.

"When did you first realize your husband didn't want you?" she was asked

"I knew it the first night after the honeymoon as we walked into the door," she said

Suspect Is Held in Stock Sales

What Has Happened So Far

John G. Rarick has made millions as a chain store operator. His wife, Jenny, shortly after their marriage, lent him $2500, all she had, when he was near failure, and out of this money he built riches. But Jenny resents his far-from-imposing appearance and no longer feels real love for him. Rarick buys a magnificent Fifth ave. home, but secretly finds himself hating his wife. This is accentuated by his own temperamental inability to get close to Jennifer and Avery, his children. Rarick installs an odd genius, Dr. Felix Gerkes, in his house. Jenny objects and a bitter scene follows in which Rarick delivers the ultimatum that Gerkes remain. He sends for Jennifer and compels her to cancel a dinner engagement to dine with Gerkes. Jennifer finds him interesting. Jenny begins to be intrigued with Ramon, a youthful gigolo who makes love to her and finally kisses her ardently. Avery comes home from school to beg his mother to help him get leave from his father to have a couple of years to himself. Jenny, late for a tryst with Ramon, minimizes the seriousness of her son's plea.

Now Go On with the Story

(This famous story has been made into a talking picture by Metro - Goldwyn - Mayer with Marion Davies in the leading role.)

"MOTHER DEAR, you mustn't take it that way! Let me explain."

Ramon was waiting.

"Listen, dear, I must—"

"Mother, I haven't hopped on to this decision today or yesterday. I'm everybody's intal-lens at college, dear."

"That's a pretty disheartening thing to have to hear, after the long wrangle I had with your father, who wanted a state university. Really, Avery—"

"I'd be no go at college, Mother. It's hard as the devil to try to explain—even to you."

A Revelation

"Yes Avery," she said, mashing out a cigarette off which she had taken two puffs, and trying to bite down an impulsive that was almost a frenzy within her.

"I should think it might be."

Ramon was waiting.

"Mother, what do you think?"

"I can't. I don't," she said and pressed her eyeballs.

"Mother, for the last six months I've been carrying only one course at college. You might as well know and have it over with."

"You've made excellent connections, Dennie Chatterfield told Jennifer that Hal is inviting you to Whitecastle for the Christmas holidays."

"Mother, doesn't that surprise you?"

"No, should it? The Chatterfields weren't always as socially secure as they are now, I—"

"I mean doesn't it surprise you that I've only carried one course, and that a deadbeat one in current events?"

"Of course it does—"

"It doesn't, really, old darling, because you've never thought about it one way or another. But anyway—about my getting a call, legs has been a fake one, Mother. I've faked"

"Avery!"

"I haven't lived on the campus for six months. The college caning-factory bores me to the brains, so I moved out of it. I've rooms up on the hill with an artist and his wife"

"Why, Avery Rarick, how could you!"

"It's the only thing I could do, Mother I'm not cut out for the college-factory. Matter of fact, if I had put out for much of anything, I haven't found out yet what it is. That's what I want to talk about. You've been such a brick getting Father to put up with me, that it's kind of rotten to bring this bone to you after the way you maneuvered for Easter. But it would have been the same at Penn, or whatever state university it was Father preferred. It isn't that I haven't been working. I'm not a dumb fashion—worked, if you'd call it that—"

The Only Way

"Right, mother. I mean, I've been scribbling. Writing a little verse and stuff. Pretty rotten. Wouldn't like to see it, would you? Might give you a better idea of why I think a couple of years on my own—knocking around, I mean—unchaperoned—would put me straight—with things. Mother, you're not listening!"

She lifted her tormented eyes to him which for the moment she had closed against the pulsing of her inner frenzy, and made the pretense of having heard

"That is all stuff and nonsense, Avery. You are to hide your time at college, and next summer take that trip to Needham and garden with the Stanley-Blake 'nine'—"

"I don't give a damn for those saps, mother."

"Those saps, as you are pleased to call them, will some day be two of the most powerful men in America."

"I tell you I need to be alone, Mother. To find myself."

"Oh—Avery—"

"I know! I sound like a letter to a newspaper. Well, I'm capable of writing one. Like this: 'Editor, Daily Bunk. Dear Sir: What should a young man of seventeen years of age do who simply cannot get interested in life as he sees it about him. I cannot find myself. Everything becomes disgustingly monotonous. Not interesting enough to call for any real effort.

"I'm a perfect failure to date, and unless I pull out, may remain so for the rest of my days, on this supposedly glorious earth. Everything about me is so interesting as a morgue, where I am concerned. What's wrong with this picture?'"

"Letter from Editor to Morbid Young Man. Your symptoms, young man, include indifference to whatever you do and the belief that a congenial task would reveal your hitherto unappreciated

300 FACING PROSECUTION IN SOMERVILLE CHARITY FRAUD

ACTION MAY BE TAKEN TO GET MONEY BACK

Disclosures Show That City Has Lost Thousands by False Aid Claims

Nearly 300 persons may face prosecution for fake claims on Somerville welfare funds, Mayor John J. Murphy of that city announced today, as an investigation showed thousands of dollars paid on unworthy claims.

"Culpable cases of fraud will be prosecuted with a view toward restitution," he said, as he blamed a previous "penny wise pound foolish" policy for the loss of the money in fraudulent claims.

Before the advent of permanent commissioners in the welfare and soldier relief departments, Mayor Murphy said, part time commissioners had not the means of proper investigation of cases.

Since the permanent appointments of William Copithorne and Thomas F. McGrath in the respective departments, several hundred undeserving cases have been dropped from the lists, he said.

"PARASITES" CLEANED OUT

His revelation came as Newton conducted a similar probe into its welfare funds.

"We've cleaned out all the fakers and parasites on the list," Mayor Murphy said today.

"A penny wise pound foolish policy of saving a commissioner's salary was largely responsible for many unworthy persons getting on the list, but Mr. Copithorne and Mr. McGrath have been appointed on full time and have succeeded in weeding out the unworthy."

He told of an instance in which an applicant was brought "starving" for relief by a member of the city government. Later, the mayor said, he learned the man had died and was buried in an $850 casket.

A system of work for the applicants has also been worked out, he said.

Under the plan those who apply for relief must work for the city in any way they can. Those who refuse receive no relief, this has already disclosed 70 who refused employment, officials state.

VETERANS DROPPED

Mayor Murphy plans to send an account of the plan to Governor Ely. There is no conflict with the civil service in the plan as workers receive a flat sum of welfare funds and are not paid by the city.

The investigation in Somerville disclosed many who, though not entitled to relief, were receiving it. Some would not work, others had autos, houses and bank accounts, many of which were transferred. Some were receiving help from one or more private charitable organizations, it was revealed.

As a result of the probe, the number of veterans receiving aid from the soldier's relief commission has been reduced from 325 to 325 while 80 persons have been dropped from the rolls of the welfare department. Of this 80 it was stated that 17 have been brought into court on non-support charges.

NEWTON RECOVERS

It was pointed out then in no cases had any deserving applicants objected to the plan of Mayor Murphy.

A complete checkup of applications in Newton has not been made because of the limited staff of the welfare department, is was learned. With the disclosure of fraud among applicants it was decided to check closely and the board of aldermen has authorized an appropriation of $300 to the department to employ two investigators.

The fraud was uncovered when police found $7000 in cash hidden in a home where they were making a liquor raid. By threatening to prosecute for larceny when the liquor case was tried, the welfare department recovered the $454 which had been expended as aid to the supposedly needy family.

WORK BEGINS ON STATION MOVIE

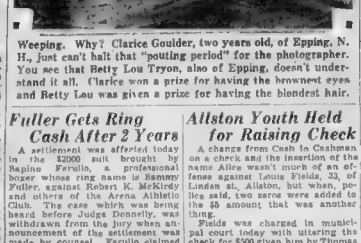
As 200 persons looked on, the mayor with an electric drill, attacked a solid granite wall at the Dorchester ave. end of the station. He was aided by two workmen, Joseph Lanno and Nicola Franchette. The rear entrance to the theater will be at the point where the mayor drilled.

Entrance to the theater, which will seat 600 persons, will be through the main concourse of the station. The theater lobby will be constructed near track 27. An admission of 20 or 25 cents will be charged and the entire show will last one hour. It will consist of news reels and short subjects, the idea being to entertain waiting persons waiting for trains.

Among those present at today's formalities were Arthur Russell, vice-president of the New Haven Railroad; H. M. Biscoe, vice-president, Boston & Albany; William H. Wright, assistant to the president of the Boston Terminal Co.; Joseph M. Levenson, motion picture and theatrical magnate, who heads the enterprise, his brother, Max L. Levenson; Nathan Selinger, A. Thomson, Atty. John Slater, Warren Rauch, Gen. Edward L. Logan and Mrs. Arthur Russell.

Scores of Babies Attend Boston University Show; Picking Winners Is Hard Job

What wonderful babies came to the annual baby show of the Boston University School of Technology, held yesterday. It was held in conjunction with Boston Baby Week. Here are some of the mothers and babies. Left to right the parents and babies are: Mrs. Charles Phillips, Helen Ann Phillips, Brookline, N. H.; Mrs. G. G. Hughes, Jean Irene, Concord; Mrs. Henry Morton, Mary Elizabeth, Acushnet; Mrs. Harlin Campbell, Jeanne Eloise, Newmarket, N. H.; Rev. Harlin Campbell and his son Howard, also of Newmarket. All these babies are prize winners. (Staff photos.)



Weeping. Why? Clarice Goulder, two years old, of Epping, N. H., just can't halt that "pouting period" for the photographer. You see that Betty Lou Tryon, also of Epping, doesn't understand it all. Clarice won a prize for having the brownest eyes and Betty Lou was given a prize for having the blondest hair.

Fuller Gets Ring Cash After 2 Years

A settlement was effected today in the $2000 suit brought by Sapino Ferullo, a professional boxer whose ring name is Sammy Fuller, against Robert K. McKirdy and others of the Arena Athletic Club. The case which was being heard before Judge Donnelly, was withdrawn from the jury when announcement of the settlement was made by counsel. Ferullo claimed 27½ per cent of the gate receipts of his fight on June 30, 1926, with Jake Zeramby in which he fouled Zeramby in the third round. The nature of the settlement was not divulged.

Allston Youth Held for Raising Check

A change from Cash to Cashman on a check and the insertion of the name Alice wasn't much of an offense against Louis Fields, 33, of Lindsay st., Allston, but when, police said, two zeros were added to the $5 amount that was another thing.

Fields was charged in municipal court today with uttering the check for $500 given him by Thomas Metcalf, of Boylston st., Back Bay. Police Inspector John A. Dorsey told the court the check had been made out to Cash. Fields was held in bonds of $1000 for a hearing May 14.

PORTER ST. JOB AUTHORIZED

The Boston street commission was authorized by Mayor Curley today to begin immediate construction of Porter st., East Boston, as an 80-foot boulevard from the portal of the new traffic tunnel to the airport, at a cost of $600,000.

Funds for the project will come from the $2,700,000 authorized by the Legislature last year.

The mayor also authorized the commission to proceed at once with the widening of Morton st., Dorchester, at a cost of $70,000.

Sixty Quarrymen Strike

Sixty quarrymen and cutters, the entire force of the Plymouth Quarries, Inc., of Weymouth, were on strike today demanding recognition of their union. A wage question is also involved.

GIRL SOBS FOR ZEBRA FRIEND

While her girl trainer sobbed at the parting, Queenie, a five-year-old zebra, was presented to Mayor Curley at City Hall today for the Franklin Park Zoo—the gift of John Ringling, circus proprietor.

"Oh," sobbed Mary Lennette, the trainer, "if they were going to give a zebra away, why didn't they give another one. This is the best of the herd and the most intelligent one."

William Conway and Frank Braydon of the Ringling circus staff, who acted as Ringling in the presentation, calmed the trainer, and then Mayor Curley, on the City Hall lawn, placed his derby on the zebra's head for protographers.

The zebra departed from City Hall to take up its new residence in the zoo.

MAYOR DOES A JOB ON TERMINAL THEATER

ARTHUR P. RUSSELL
Mayor Curley shown starting work on the South Station Terminal Theater, which is to be on the Dorchester ave. side of the station. It is to be for the entertainment and amusement of passengers waiting for trains. Mr Russell, vice-president of the New Haven, and Mr. Levenson of the Terminal Theater Co. are seeing that the mayor does a good job.

U. S. to Re-survey Fishing Grounds

A re-survey of the fishing grounds on the Georges Banks and Nantucket south shoals will begin within a few days, Commander R. F. Luce of the U. S. Coast and Geodetic Survey announced today.

The Lydonia, now at the navy yard, and three other vessels will take part in the work, aided by the latest scientific equipment.

Electric sounding devices will be used and the results are expected to be of great value to the fishing industry and ocean commerce. A new submarine valley, result of an earthquake, was discovered during the last soundings on the banks.

Mortgage Co. Court Action Is Delayed

Asst. U. S. Atty.-Gen. Forrest Harness, who was due here today to confer with Asst. U. S. Dist.-Atty. Haven Parker about the American Bond & Mortgage Co. probe, has been detained in Chicago on work connected with a similar investigation there, it was stated today at the Federal building. He may reach here later this week.

REVERE FOLK IN FIGHT ON OIL TANK FARM

Taxpayers' Association Opposes Drive by Chamber of Commerce Leaders

Three protest meetings against the erection of oil storage tanks on Chelsea creek, Revere, were planned today by the Taxpayers' Association of that city, following a meeting of the Revere Chamber of Commerce last night that reported favorably on the project.

A meeting tonight in the Wolcott school will be followed by another tomorrow night at Hibernian Hall and a third on Friday night in the Julia Ward Howe school, Beachmont.

The tanks are sought by the Boston Port Development Co. and Thomas Green, a Revere business man.

Led by Philip Aurelia, president of the association, Representative Thomas F. Carroll and Myron Wiggerson, attorney for the Taxpayers' Association, the meetings are to prepare arguments for the city council hearing on May 11.

At the Chamber of Commerce meeting the plan was outlined by Francis T. Leahy for the port development interests, and Fire Chief Thomas J. McCarrick was registered in favor of the plan.

WORK ON NEW POSTOFFICE BEGINS MIDDLE OF NEXT MONTH

DATE WIRED TO AMERICAN BY CONTRACTOR

Hundreds Visit Site to See if the Long-Delayed Project Had Got Under Way

Work on the new postoffice and federal building will start about the middle of next month, the Boston Evening American was informed today by the contractors, the N. P. Severa Co. of Chicago.

Because of Washington dispatches, giving the impression the work would start today, the government having cut red tape which held up the contract, hundreds visited the site today and were disappointed to see no activity.

The Boston Evening American wired the company and received the following reply:

"Due to uncertainty of settlement, rolling and fabrication of structural steel had been temporarily held up.

ABOUT JUNE 14

"However, in view of yesterday's decision, steel mills have been authorized to again proceed with work.

"Under the circumstances, the length of time before actual construction will start will be about the same as previously advised or approximately June 14.

"Washington dispatches mentioning starting today merely referred to legal date that contract time goes into effect and does not refer to actual construction at site. N. P. SEVERIN CO."

Boston labor leaders said they were in communication with officials of the company and had been informed that representatives of the Chicago concern would come here soon to take up with their local agents the question of employing workmen.

NEW ENGLAND GRANITE

The Building Trades Council is ready to have the work done under full union rules.

The tape holding up the contract was cut when Comptroller-General J. R. McCarl at Washington withdrew his objections which had been based on a legal slipup in asking for new bids after the original specifications were altered.

New England granite will be used in the exterior of the building which will be 21 stories and will cost $4,648,000. It is to be built within 22 months.

POLICE KEEP UP CITY 'TAG' WAR

Paper and cardboard shots in the auto tag war became very confusing indeed today what with conferences and battlers for the tagged ones being tagged themselves.

It all grew out of two summonses to appear in court on parking charges being issued against Joseph Fucillo, of 19 Fleet st., North End.

An investigator for the city law department, and Corporation Counsel Samuel Silverman's assertion that he would not prose the summonses.

Today, therefore, Asst. Corporation Counsel Julian Rainey went to the courthouse to confer with Court Clerk Edward J. Lord on the two summonses.

When Atty. Rainey got back to the law department it was only to learn that, in the interim, Fucillo had received a third summons on a third parking charge—and now, of course had three instead of two.

The assistant corporation counsel was still pondering heavily over this when he himself received a summons to court to answer a parking charge.

That was all there was stirring today in the tag war but that was plenty for the law department, which charges that police are persecuting the department members.

City to Raze Shacks Near Arboretum

A group of dilapidated buildings adjoining the entrance to the Arnold Arboretum in West Roxbury will be removed at a cost of $150,000 and one of the most unsightly spots in the Boston park system wiped out, Mayor Curley announced today.

Decision to acquire the property and beautify the spot was arrived at by the mayor at a conference with the members of the street commission and Chairman William P. Long of the park commission.

Cruiser Milwaukee Will Drydock Here

The cruiser Milwaukee will arrive at Boston Navy Yard tomorrow for her periodical drydocking. She will remain about a week. No additional help will be employed as such work as is found necessary.

Bids for discarded naval material will be opened at the yard May 21. The material includes 12,000 pounds of powder, motor boats, launches, boat fittings, two scows, barges and four motor trucks.

Civil War Vet Gets Reply to Quincy Marriage Offer

J. Edward Fenner of Rockdale, Civil War veteran who gallantly offered to marry one of Quincy's 1300 surplus single women, got a quick response to his offer today—but no assurance that any romance would ensue.

Word of Fenner's offer had hardly been made public by newspapers, when a woman telephoned Sec. Alice Hogan of the Quincy Chamber of Commerce and said she believed she knew the veteran and his first wife.

Then the woman asked where Rockdale was, and on being told it was a small town near Worcester, merely said "Thank you" and hung up.

STONE TO SEEK PADLOCKS FOR VIOLATORS

Assistant U. S. District Attorney Moves Against the Persistent Breakers of Law

Padlocks will be invoked immediately against repeated violators of the prohibition amendment, Asst. U. S. Dist. Atty. Elihu D. Stone announced today.

He said he was preparing cases against numerous offenders for presentation in federal court asking authority to padlock premises where illegal traffic in liquor was proven.

"I am preparing evidence in a number of cases, most of them concentrated in the western part of the state, in which I intend to ask injunctions closing the premises for repeated violations," Stone declared.

There were also indications today that U. S. Dist. Atty. Frederick H. Tarr was seeking a number of indictments in liquor cases before the grand jury in session in the federal building.

It was also reported at the federal building that the customs men were to make a report to the jurors of their investigation of amateur radio operators in the Revere district alleged to be in communication with rum ships beyond the 32-mile limit.

"Army's" London Official Is Accompanied by His Wife; Here for Two Days

Gen. Edward J. Higgins of London, head of the entire Salvation Army organization, arrived here today for a two days' visit in connection with his tour of the United States. He was accompanied by his wife.

Others in the welcoming party included Edward P. Barry, former lieutenant-governor, representing Mayor Curley; J. A. Moriarty, president of the Boston Central Labor Union; Mary E. Gallagher of Suffolk County Mothers' Club; Rev. Dr. George L. Paine, executive secretary of Greater Boston Federation of Churches, and Mrs. George F. Fearing, chairman of the women's committee and member of the advisory council.

In Tremont Temple tomorrow evening Gen. Higgins will speak on "The Army's Message and Work." He also plans to attend the annual meeting of the Greater Boston advisory board tomorrow.

In addition to his wife, Gen. Higgins is accompanied by Col. Joseph Pugmire and Comdr. John McMillan, commander of Eastern territory.

A blackthorn stick from County Waterford, Ireland, was Mayor Curley's gift today to Gen. Higgins of London, who called at City Hall with Mrs. Higgins and a score of officials of the "Sallies" from this vicinity.

Mrs. Higgins was given a gold paperweight. The mayor praised the work of the "Sallies."

BANKER TO GET MEDAL TONIGHT

Notre Dame will never recover from the loss of Knute Rockne.

The statement came today from Rev. Charles L. O'Donnell, C. S. C., president of the university, who was in Boston today for the presentation of the Laetare Medal to James J. Phelan, Boston banker.

Phelan will receive the award from Fr. O'Donnell in recognition of success and achievement as a member of the Catholic faith.

Before the presentation, which is scheduled for tonight with only a few friends and relatives of the recipient present, Fr. O'Donnell talked at length of the "power for good" Rockne conveyed to his university.

He pointed out that Phelan is the 49th in America to receive the Laetare Medal, others including former Gov. Alfred E. Smith of New York. The only other New Englanders to receive it were Thomas B. Fitzpatrick in 1905, Catherine Conway in 1907 and Charles D. Maginnis in 1924.

The winner is selected after months of study by a committee composed of priests and laymen representing all branches of the arts, professions and the business world.

Legion Markers Are Stolen From Graves

The thefts of American Legion markers from Somerville graves was revealed today in a request of Somerville Post for reimbursement of that city. Dozens of markers have disappeared since last Memorial Day, according to the report of Charles Small, post finance officer, who made the request at Mayor John J. Murphy.

The thieves are attracted by the value of the markers and stoop to thefts for the money they receive in disposing of them as old bronze. Mayor Murphy ordered a checkup by the superintendents of the cemeteries and also of dealers in old metal in an effort to learn how the markers are disposed of after the thieves take them from the graves.

JUDGE BURNS IS CONFIRMED

Appointment of Prof. John J. Burns of Harvard Law School as a Superior Court judge was unanimously confirmed today by the Governor's Council.

Gov. Ely, in the presence of more than 100 persons, including the new judge's wife, father and mother, then administered the oath of office to Judge Burns, the youngest man ever to sit on the Superior Court bench.

The crowd cheered and applauded at the conclusion of the formal ceremony, and Gov. Ely congratulated the new judge and wished him success.

Judge Burns will be inducted into office Friday by Judge Joseph Walsh in Suffolk Court.

Waltham Man Jailed in 9th Liquor Case

Convicted of violating the liquor laws for the ninth time in Waltham district court yesterday, Nicholas Rechos, 38, of Spring st., Waltham, was given two sentences of one month in the house of correction to be served concurrently.

BANANAS DRESS UP YOUR "PLAIN JANE" MEALS!

"WHY in the world don't you cook something different?" unfairly complains the work-weary husband. But you're a tactful wife. You don't rise up in wrath and say, "What... on the money you give me for food!"

Now listen to this secret! You can change the most ordinary "plain Jane" foods into dishes your husband will think he's never met before... for literally NEXT TO NOTHING...! Just put bananas on your grocery list. They've never been cheaper than they are right now. Snip, snip... a few slices here... a few slices there... on breakfast foods, custards, gelatin desserts, and salads, and PRESTO!

The masterly male will say, "Atta girl... that's just what I meant by something different!"

IN JUST A MINUTE!

BREAKFAST CEREAL. Just a minute to add this nourishing appetite appeal to cold or hot cereal. And um! how the children go for it! To say nothing of how it pleases grown-up appetites.

LUNCHEON DESSERT. There's nothing simpler or better tasting than fruit gelatin, served with a youthful garnish of goodness... bananas. Quick? Yes!

DINNER SALAD. Only a slice of canned pineapple perched on a crumbled green lettuce leaf. That's no trouble. Then a ring of bananas sliced to circle the plate. The tart tang of the pineapple... the smooth sweetness of the banana... a grand combination.

PAIN after eating

WHAT many call "indigestion" is very often nothing but excess acid in the stomach. The stomach nerves have been over-stimulated, and food sours. The corrective is an alkali, which neutralizes acids instantly. The best alkali known to medical science is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. It has remained the standard anti-acid with physicians in the 50 years since its invention.

One spoonful of this harmless, tasteless alkali will neutralize instantly many times as much acid, and the symptoms disappear at once. You will never use crude methods when once you learn the efficiency of this pleasant way. A small bottle is sufficient to show its merit.

Be sure to get genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for more than 50 years in correcting excess acid. 25c and 50c a bottle; any druggist. Complete directions for its many uses are enclosed with every bottle.

Look for the Phillips' name on bottle.

Which is the best heat for making toast—charcoal, gas flame, or electricity? Sir Frank Heath's answer to this question caused a controversy among cooks, dieticians, manufacturers and housewives in England recently. Read about it in the American Weekly section of the next Boston Sunday Advertiser.

A Thrilling Serial of Post-War Love, Romance and Intrigue

By FAITH BALDWIN

Lorrimer Must Be Told

By FAITH BALDWIN

"LADY DIANA told me," Larry said. "One thing led to another. She said she'd been born here. She admitted she wasn't English, let alone titled. And after a time she spoke of Lorrimer," he went on miserably, forced to it by Mary Lou's eyes on his own.

"Oh—Lorry!" She drew a deep breath. The hand on his sleeve tightened. "What did she say? Tell me what she said!"

"Not much. Said I reminded her of a boy she'd known. Told me his name. Said he had died . . ." Larry answered briefly.

"Did she say they had—been married?" whispered Mary Lou.

"No."

After a moment he said, wretchedly.

"I—didn't want to tell you."

"You had to tell me. I would never have forgiven you if you hadn't and I found out," she answered.

Then she rose and began to walk about the big room. A beautiful room. She loved it. She spent many indescribably happy hours in it. This was where the tea table was set, usually. This was where she and Lorrimer read together, through the winter evenings, with a soft glowing of lights about them, with the fire living its scarlet and gold life on the wide hearth, its vital life, part flame, part song: this is where they had sat together so many nights, reading, talking, arguing . . . and—and loving each other, mutely, without word . . . while the wind spoke to them down the stone chimney and the snow thudded against the pane. A lovely room. She'd always remember it . . . even after she had ceased to see it . . . ceased.

She began to cry quite suddenly.

She stared at him. Already he had put her back within her own name in her own estimation. He was Delight no more now that Delight had come.

She mopped, childishly at her eyes, with a wisp of a handkerchief and controlled herself with an effort. She stood straight before him, straight and small in her soft, fine tweed frock . . . her lovely hair gleaming about her small white face.

"Did you tell her?" she demanded.

"No. I wanted to tell you first, Mrs. Lorrimer should know, too, before Travers is told, I think. It's all up to you, Mary Lou. And, look here," begged Larry, unable to endure any more the sight of her silent misery, "till you say the word, no one need ever know except us. I'll not tell. I don't think she'll ever—ever try to find anyone belonging to Lorrimer. I think it was safe to say the word, then, Mary Lou, and we'll forget that I found her."

She said, slowly:

"I know you said that. It's dear of you, Larry. But, no, it can't be. I'd hate myself all my life. Besides, where would it get us? Mrs. Lorrimer must know. She must find out that they were married. She must send for —Delight. Must tell Lorry. No, Larry, we can't keep it a secret. I'll tell Mrs. Lorrimer myself, if you don't mind. In a way, it is bound to be a shock to her—and perhaps you can come over tomorrow and see her for a few minutes and give her the details . . . can you?"

He could and would. Said so. And after a little, took his leave, unable to give her more comfort than could be conveyed in the hard and hurting grip of his big, loyal hand. He walked over to the Wynns' place and spent the earlier part of the evening explaining to his worried Jenny that his obvious abstraction was due to a recent editorial rejection.

Mary Lou had half an hour alone in the library before the Lorrimers returned. Peter came in to light the lamps and she asked him, sitting curled up on the window seat, not to do so, for a while, please. And Peter crept softly out, a little troubled and bewildered.

Sitting there, a huddle of unhappiness, she looked out at the darkening spring sky and the single stars prickling through. The air was soft, with a suggestion of summer in it and yet the lingering chill of winter. Flowers were in the borders, she could smell hyacinths. All her life she would hate hyacinths.

Over. The Fool's Paradise. Well, it was something, she thought, dully, to have known it at all. To have known—him. It couldn't have lasted anyway; it was built on pretense, on pretense, on a romantic sort of fairy tale.

Loving wouldn't hurt you she'd imagined. She knew better now. It hurt—terribly it always would. But she wasn't ashamed. It was an honorable wound.

Pretty soon she would go away with the pretty new clothes and the new trunk and luggage she'd been given. Pretty soon she'd go away with a little bankbook, which would contain the records of her salary savings.

Beautify the Busy Hands

By MISS HUDDLESTON

WHAT girl doesn't long for nails that are long and well shaped and hands that reveal a life of leisure? But what a world of grief is caused by broken and split nails and hands that appear rough and toilworn. The housewife who finds it necessary to perform the hundreds of tasks in the home and the typist whose nails are constantly broken and split by the hard keys of the typewriter, are, I believe, the greatest sufferers of nail and hand tragedies.

Josephine Huddleston

Today, I have a few suggestions, especially suited to the typist. I know their troubles, because I, too, often find my nails broken and split and the skin over the knuckles loose, thus giving the entire hand an appearance of not having been cared for.

Proper massage and manicure are of first importance in correcting such trouble, caused by typing. If the nails appear flat and blunt, they should be kept closely filed at the sides and the tips should extend just a trifle beyond the ends of the fingers.

After the nails have been filed to your satisfaction, let the fingers lie in warm, soapy water for a few minutes. Then, with the end of an orange-wood stick wrapped in cotton and saturated with special oil, work from the tips of the nail down to its base, pushing the cuticle back as far as possible without causing discomfort.

Finished with the filing, apply a liberal quantity of nourishing cream or oil on the hands; then, beginning at the very tip of the finger, massage with one stroke down to the base of the finger, where it joins the palm of the hand. After each finger has had five downward strokes, go over each finger tip, massaging from the first joint to the very tip, pressing firmly at the sides of the nail.

What's in Fashion Today

By AMOS PARRISH

NEW YORK, May 6—"Every dress I've bought this spring has a jacket," we heard one fashionable woman remark the other day. "If a dress has a jacket, you're set for anything."

She's just about right. And she thinks exactly as thousands of other fashionable women do. When you're in doubt, wear the dress that has a jacket.

If you don't know how formal the dinner is, wear the dinner dress with its jacket. If you find it's very formal, take the jacket off.

If it's afternoon bridge, wear the sleeveless afternoon dress with its jacket. And go to dinner afterward with the jacket folded up in your coat pocket.

If it's one of those daytime jaunts with many little things to do, wear the short sleeved daytime dress with the jacket for shopping. Lunch at your friend's apartment without the jacket. Take tea next door the same way.

The jackets that go with these costumes don't always have to match in color and material. They're smart just as long as they look as though they go together.

Jackets to Match

In most general daytime costumes, though, the jacket actually does not match the dress. One part of the dress. For instance, in the sketch at the left the dress is plain color with a yoke of print. The jacket is plain color lined with the print.

It could just as smartly have been plain color without the printed lining. Or it could have been a print, or a print with plain lining. (It's not a bad idea to have the jacket reversible—wearable either side out—when it's made of two materials.)

With an all plain color dress, however, the smart jacket would be plain color, too. And with an all print dress the jacket would be all print.

Afternoon Jackets

Afternoon dresses of chiffon, prints, lace or flat crepe have their matching jackets, too. And some of them have their jackets that don't match.

White lace jackets over dark chiffons are a new idea. You see these in the evening, too. In fact, any white jacket worn with a dark dress is a smart afternoon fashion.

We've sketched one of these at the center. In this particular costume, the black dress has a white brooch. But you usually matches part of the dress. But it could be worn with an all-black dress just as smartly.

Proper Way to Accept an Invitation

By MRS. BEECKMAN

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

What does a girl say when accepting a man's invitation to go out? When refusing, what does she say? T. C.

When a girl wishes to accept the invitation she says just that, with a thank you: "Thank you for asking me. I should love to go to the theater with you on Friday." Or, "Thank you. I should love to go."

When she "regrets" the invitation, she gives some reason: "Thank you for asking me, but I can't leave the country of going on Friday. I already have an engagement for that evening."

Expressing Thanks

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Our club is going to give a party and each girl is to ask a boy. When the boy brings the girl home, should she thank him and tell him she had a good time, or should the boy tell the girl this, since she asked him to the party? SCHOOL GIRLS.

The well-bred boy will be the first one to express his thanks, his thanks for the invitation and for the happy time that he has had. This is most important. Then the girl will tell her guest how delightful she is that he could come to the party and that she is glad that he had a good time. She would add, too, that he was a delightful guest, and that he had made the evening a happy one for her.

Greeting the Employer

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

An elderly employer visits the concern every year and on arriving greets each employe at his or her desk. Is it proper for a young woman employe to rise when greeting and shaking hands? It seems rather clumsy not to do so, but I should like to have your answer as to the proper thing to do in this case. CONSTANT READER.

I agree with you that it would seem clumsy for the young woman an not to rise on this occasion She would rise, but would not necessarily shake hands, or offer to shake hands, unless this is the known custom of the elderly employer.

Teething May Hide Other Illness

By DR. R. S. COPELAND

THERE IS a popular belief that the teeth are to blame for every complaint the baby may have. If the baby cries, or does not take his nourishment or runs a temperature, it is a common thing to blame it on "teething."

"This is an unfortunate belief. It is unfounded and dangerous. Many a severe illness could have been cut short if in the beginning it had not been attributed to Dr. Copeland teething. Valuable time is lost.

Teething should never make a child sick. A healthy child will seldom know when his teeth come through. He does not show any signs of disturbance in health. Very rarely a child may have abnormally difficult eruption of teeth. In these cases there is great pain, but fortunately they are rare.

The two central "cutting teeth," or "incisors," of the lower jaw, are the first teeth to show. These usually appear between the fourth and sixth months.

The upper four central teeth come next, arriving between the eighth and 12th months. Next to appear are the other two lower central teeth. These give the child eight cutting teeth or incisors at the age of one year.

The grinding teeth, or "molars," appear between the ages of 12 and 18 months. There is one such tooth on each side, both in the upper and lower jaw.

Answers to Health Queries

A. B., Q.—Would a tapeworm be apt to cause a choked-up feeling, accompanied by shortness of breath and nervousness, before meals? If not, what would cause the trouble and how can it be overcome?

A.—Not necessarily; these symptoms would seem to suggest hyperacidity. Watch your diet and be sure that the bowels are functioning properly.

P. D., Q.—What do you advise for oily hair?

MISS N. A. C., Q.—What causes indigestion?

PUTTING IT OVER

Today's True Story

"LISTEN, MAE," Roy said, his voice impassioned, his eyes pleading, "you've simply got to quit your job. I've had two raises, during the year we've been married, and I'm plenty capable of taking care of you now; it's preposterous for you to go on working. It makes me feel like a—like a—"

"Of course," Mae interposed coldly, "you think it yourself only. And please remember that the agreement under which we married was to the effect that I was to keep my job and that we would go fifty fifty on all expenses. We can live a much more luxurious life that way, you know."

"Using the luxuries," Roy cut in bitterly: "you are all in the world I want. You're the greatest luxury the world contains . . . And—"

A Luxury

". . . And if I loved you as much as you love me, I ought to think that you are the greatest luxury the world contains too. Isn't that it?" Mae asked coolly. Never had she looked more beautiful than tonight, Roy thought. So like her large, wide eyes; so golden yellow her fluff of bobbed hair; so dainty and white her skin; and her lithe young figure was that of a girl of eighteen, whereas she was actually twenty-three. And as she looked at him she was thinking somewhat the same thing. She tall and erect and good looking he was; so youthful, despite his five years of seniority over her. So coaxing to feminine adoring fingers the natural crinkle in his lovely black hair; so deep and stirring his brown eyes.

"You won't quit then?" he ended.

"No," Mae said firmly.

And there the argument ended as usual, though Mae could see that he had been more upset than usual by it. But she could not give up the thought of independence that comes with her good salary, her day's work at the office performed superlatively well. It was good to know that you stood squarely on your own feet, even if you were married. All day Mae worried about the situation. And, next morning, when Roy merely rolled over and went back to sleep when the alarm sounded she was dumbfounded. She shook him:

"Aren't you going to work?" she asked.

"Nope," he told her laconically. "Was laid off."

"But what'll we do?" she asked in amazement.

"Do," he echoed carelessly, "why, you'll take care of me, of course—that was part of the contract, you know. We agreed that if I got hard up you'd take care of me, and if you got hard up I'd take care of you

And there the thing stood. A week passed. Two weeks. Three. Each day Mae came home to find Roy whistling and cleaning up the house. He seemed monstrously contented

"Say," he told her, "it's swell to stay home all day long and take care of the house. I get a big kick out of it. I get the housework done by two or three o'clock each day, and then I can go out to a movie, or I read a good book. I haven't enjoyed myself so much in years . . . and I'm cashing up on my reading wonderfully."

Downtown each day now Mae thought of Roy at home, comfortably in the Morris chair; with his feet propped up on the piano stool, reading . . . Never, it seemed to her, had work been so irksome as it now became with the thought of somebody else comfortably exempt from it, lazily reading and loafing and lounging.

But it had been part of their agreement, she remembered, and she had been the one to be the most insistent that their agreement be kept strictly to the letter. However, she said, that night

"Are you looking for a job, Roy?"

It was too much for Mae. A month passed; two—the thought of working while someone else lazed at home, devouring quantities of magazines, was entirely too much. At last, triumphantly, she announced one night:

"Well, you'll have to find a job now. I've given them notice at the office that I'll have to leave in a few months. We're going to have a baby—" He sprang up. Took her into his arms. Smothered her with kisses.

"You little cheat!" he laughed. "I'll bet you deliberately—"

Looking for Job

"I'll find one tomorrow," he promised, "if you'll give your firm two weeks notice."

"All right," she agreed.

When she came home that night with the news that she was to leave in two weeks, Roy took her into his arms and said

"I've got a confession to make. You see, I didn't really quit my job. I asked the firm to put me outside for awhile for my health, on a straight commission basis. On that basis I could work as much or as little as I liked. I've been having a workwoman come in each day and do the housecleaning, and I've been out selling. I've made more money in the last few weeks than I ever made before in my life. From now on the firm has agreed that I'm to stay on straight commission; I'm making as much as my former salary and yours combined."

"Well, you've got me to thank, Mae said; "if it hadn't been for me and your desire to force me hand, you'd never have discovered you could sell."

"Go on, honey," he grinned; "I'll let you have the last word, from now on you can always have it, it'll be angel; because we're going to take mighty good care of you."

Answers to Requests

MRS. OSCAR J. OLESON of Pollard st., No. Billerica, Mass., sends Mrs. C. S. O. of Brookline the requested recipe for Lobscouse:

LOBSCOUSE.

Six or 7 medium-sized potatoes cut in small chunks, 1 small onion, ½ pound corned beef (the canned) cut in slices. Put on top of the potatoes salt and a little pepper. Add water so you can see it around the edges. Cook in a covered kettle like you would potatoes. When the potatoes are about done, stir and mash the potatoes while it is cooking until it is about like hash.

Get Some Girl Friend to Help You

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am 22 years old, considered good looking, attractive and have a slim graceful figure, still I can't seem to get a break in meeting some young man. I never go anywhere. I envy some more girls. I would like your advice as to what I should do.

LONESOME.

Dear Lonesome: If you don't know any nice girl friend who would take you out and introduce you at parties and dances, why not join some club. There ought to be several in your locality where you would meet desirable young men. If you do, then it is your own responsibility to attract which will attract them—or not. Be gracious to all as this is a charm almost the equal of beauty.

Loves Clean Sport

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a daily reader of your column and enjoy it. I have never written to you before. I am 18 and work every day in a department store in Boston. I have girl friends, but no boy friend. I have gone out with boys from the store and others outside but I don't care for them. All they like to do is go to dance halls or out drinking and smoking, till all hours. MADELINE.

Dear Madeline: I am delighted to hear from a girl who loves clean sport and good times. Don't despair, the young man will come along, doubtless, who will help you in your search for innocent enjoyment.

Can You Tell Good Veal by Sight?

By MARTHA LEE

From Martha Lee's Wednesday morning broadcast over Station WAAB.

SPRING VEAL is with us and there's an abundant supply of juicy, tender and tasty veal that is economical and delicious.

When you purchase veal have in mind the quality characteristics that denote the finest grades. Here they are in case you want to clip this for your reference files:

The lean of good veal is light pink, as nearly white as possible. The meat is very fine grained fairly firm and velvety in texture and not marbled or mottled with fat. The covering of "baby fat" should be firm rather than soft and flabby and should be smooth and velvety in appearance. The bone is porous, soft and red and the ends of some of the bones are still pliable. This grade of veal when properly cooked will be juicy and tender.

Martha Lee

COOKING VEAL

Veal should always be cooked well done and with the addition of fat. Contrary to the old opinion, veal is readily and easily digested, well prepared following any of the suggested recipes. It is well to remember that even a roast of veal is much improved if cooked in a covered roaster after the searing has been completed. Larding with strips of bacon will not only give the needed richness or fat to the veal, but also enhances the flavor of the meat.

Faithfully yours,

Martha Lee

RAILS TO SEEK FREIGHT RATE ADVANCES

By FRANK H. MELOON

Announcement was made today that the railroads are preparing to seek advances in freight rates, confirming an exclusive report of the move which appeared in this column last week. To discuss possibilities in the purpose of a special meeting of the executive committee of the Association of Railway Executives, called for Friday, May 8, at Chicago. An "emergency" increase in freight rates of 10 to 12 per cent is to be sought, State Street hears. Some believe too drastic an advance would only result in turning over more traffic to automotive rivals.

* * *

Please bear in mind that we know motor vehicles have been operated by Diesel engines, in the United States, Germany and elsewhere. The problem now is to prove such operation practical. As the Diesel engine burns crude oil, dispenses with carburetors and is said to do away with the somewhat remote possibility of the machine's catching fire, some of its advantages are obvious.

Hugh Butler

* * *

Manager Hugh Butler of the New England Division of the U. S. Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce is to be commended for the 60-page pamphlet entitled "The Foreign Trade Survey of New England." Presenting a coherent picture of this important section of our commerce, it pursues studies along lines we believe were first suggested by Present Victor M. Cutter of the great United Fruit Co. several years ago. It is to be hoped it will be read by all who are interested in New England imports and exports to the end that development may continue at an accelerated pace.

* * *

It has been pointed out in this column that present legal and other methods of arriving at the value of security holdings in banks and portfolios and only statistical. A striking instance of the truth of this is afforded by the late George F. Baker estate. The inheritance taxes will amount to far less than they would have been had Mr. Baker died at the height of the so-called "Coolidge bull market."

* * *

The value of the Baker holdings has decreased statistically, but the holdings could never have been actually marketed at the 1929 peak.

* * *

In reading comparisons of April store sales with those of a year ago, it will be well to bear in mind what President Hubert T. Parson of Woolworth's has stated that executives pointed out. This is that April sales this year reflected only four days of Easter shopping, while the month last year included the entire Easter buying season.

* * *

Pidgety holders of railroad bonds have been in a hurry to throw them overboard because they feared their removal from the "legal" lists of various states. When this danger is removed by better rail earnings and the full force of this investment buying of high grade bonds is let loose, bonds will rise with a bang. When this happens, the business recovery will surely be around the corner.

* * *

When the Diesel engine was first experimented with by the automotive industry, it was stated in this column that its presence on the highways was not beyond the bounds of probability. Denials were promptly forthcoming from a number of industrial leaders, but now we find President Alvin Macauley of Packard admitting the company is exploring the field of practical potential uses, including installation of the Diesel as a power unit in motor trucks.

Hardware Sales Reported Spotty

New York, May 6—Reports from leading hardware markets of the country indicate that the demand has a "spotty" character at the present time, Hardware Age will say tomorrow in its review. Some sales volume has recently exceeded that of a year ago. In others, serving trade factors have been less favorable conditions prevailed, sales are running behind the corresponding period of last year.

Central Power Has Larger Year's Net

New York, May 6—Central Power & Light Co. reports for quarter ended March 31 profit of $662,417 after taxes and charges, but before depreciation, against $879,192 in the March quarter of 1930. Twelve months' net was $3,708,844, against $3,594,862.

SLAYTON SAYS SENTIMENT IS IMPROVING

Sales of Massachusetts Investors Trust certificates of beneficial interest on Thursday, April 30, amounted to 11,109 shares valued at $336,366, the third largest day in dollar volume and the second largest day in number of shares in the history of the trust. For the entire month of April, dollar sales were just under $900,000, a gain of almost 28 per cent over April, 1930. The trust fund now amounts to almost $22,000,000.

President Hovey E. Slayton of Slayton, Learoyd, Inc., general distributors, says in the trust's letter:

"We sense, through our fifty sales representatives in New England, that the investor has less fear in regard to security values than at any time for nine months. The heightened interest was a purchaser in the last days of April when the Dow Jones average made a new low for this bear market.

"Investment dealers are now almost universally convinced that management trusts are up along the line of the best Scottish and English trusts in that they are forging real service to the investor. They are here to stay and their popularity for relatively increased as their records warrant.

"Investors have been convinced by stock market action that when good news is at a premium and bad news rampant, stocks are cheap.

"We feel that sentiment is improving and that contrary to general opinion the summer months will not be so dull as is generally expected."

STATE STREET SIDELIGHTS

State Street hears reports that the covering of large bears has weakened the technical position of the market. However, the bear short sheet reveals a brisk demand for stocks. When Sinclair, Simmons and Co. were asked whether bears are loaning flat the short interest is still large, in relation to the floating supply, in the opinion of money brokers

* * *

While State Streeters see no reason for a rush to cover shorts, the very existence of a substantial short interest is encouraging to those inclined to consider the taking of profits on reactions. With prices idling along in narrow channels, the bear commitments stale and sooner or later are caught unawares by a sharp markup.

* * *

A letter to the clients of a large Boston trust house expresses the opinion that a protracted period of the low prices of last week is expected. After that they look for a gradual upward move lasting well into June. Second quarter reports will point the way after that.

* * *

Going back to 1921 and examining the earnings and market price of Steel reveals the share never sold under 31 times earnings for the year. Although the bear market low was made in August, 1921, the company showed a deficit in the last two quarters of the year and the first quarter of 1922

* * *

Reports from rail circles intimating a raise in freight rates is sought have alarmed late buyers of these equities. Reliable reports say that rail officials are not unanimous in wanting a raise and there is likely to be a good deal of opposition to any such measure.

Today's News of Live Stocks in Wall Street

Rediscount Rate Cut Is Discussed

Wall st. today was talking for the third successive week about a cut in the rediscount rate, which might be made tomorrow. Ever since Governor Norman, governor of the Bank of England, made his visit to the United States in great secrecy, it has been believed one of his objects was to have the rediscount rate lowered, to aid London.

Acceptance Rates Again Marked Down

Another cut today in acceptance rates and in the reserve bank's rate for buying bills reflected the easier situation in the money market and accentuated the possibility of a cut in rediscount rates tomorrow. Call money was unchanged at 1½ per cent.

Copper Affected by New Decline

Copper stocks were adversely affected by the sharp decline of 9¼ cents and is the lowest level the metal has reached in more than 37 years. Sales, however, were extremely slow, and producers are largely unwilling to sell at current prices.

More Curtailing by Coppers Planned

Wall st. circles reported today that officials of several of the leading copper companies and banking interests closely affiliated with them have discussed a plan for further reduction of copper production at mines operated by American companies. It was said that the plan is expected to raise prices sufficiently to permit profitable operations

General Motors' Earnings Revision

A Wall st. wire today said

"A downward revision of estimates of second quarter earnings of General Motors to $1.10 a share resulted in further selling of the stock, on a scale down to 46¾. The balance of the automobile group was inactive and fairly steady."

The wire doesn't say who did the revising, evidently wholly unofficial.

Radio Covering Follows Report

Recovery was scored in Radio when some covering took place upon appearance of a favorable letter report, showing two cents a share net, the equivalent of profits for the full year 1930. Obviously, such earnings hardly encouraged more than speculative buying

Gillette Free to Discount Future

Gillette stock, once a prime investment favorite on Wall st., has gone through a very severe deflation, in line with forecasts made some years ago. Boston bear group which had been active in the stock long ago completed its operation and now the stock is left free to discount the company's new prospects since its merger with a former competitor.

Borg Warner Has Gain of 20 P. C.

Shipping schedules of the Borg Warner Corp. issued recently in effect indicated that May operations will continue the month-to-month which has been above 20,000 since the first of the year. May shipping schedules at one of the corporation's 10 major units show an increase of 20 per cent over actual shipments in April.

Investment Buying in Consolidated Gas

Liquidation in Canadian Pacific

Selling in Pacific is said to have come from Canadian sources and representing the liquidation of a distress block of the stock which has been overhanging the market.

Better Demand Seen in Future

According to informed interests, this selling has been virtually completed and it is reported that a better demand will manifest itself on a further reaction. This buying, however, is expected to be of the "long pull" type and in all probability will be confined only to reactions.

LOWER PRICES SET IN BOSTON DEALINGS

Lower prices featured today's dealings on the Boston Stock Exchange in an extremely dull session. Utilities were weak, with New England Telephone showing a major decline of 2 points. American Telephone was over a point lower, but rallied in later trading.

Copper Range was at a new low for this year as was Railway Light & Security and U. S. Smelting. Wilson Brothers, one of the inactive issues, made its first appearance of the year at 20. At this price the issue was down a point from the previous sale.

Edison was a point lower, but regained its loss in dealings near the close. Eastern Gas & Fuel preferred dropped 1¼ and Atchison was a point higher.

Anaconda, Copper and Swift & Co. each gained fractionally. Minor losses were shown for Gillette, First National Stores, Kreuger & Toll and United Shoe.

Shawmut Corp. reduced acceptance rates ¼ per cent to 1⅛@1¼ per cent up to 90 days; four months 1⅛@1¼ per cent; six months 1⅛@1¼ per cent.

Sales of first hand copper at 9 cents, equalling the previous low, had been discounted by the depressed quotations of metal shares the past week.

The few trades today resulted in minor declines. The copper averages currently are at 13.350, a new low for the year, but still 0.39 above the all time low of 18.11 reached Dec. 16, 1914.

Atlas Plywood Corp. in the nine months to March 31, 1931, the first nine months of the company's accounting period, showed net income after all charges of close to $130,000 or 82 cents a share on the 133,300 shares of stock. In the nine months to March 31, 1930, net income was $394,158 or $2.96 a share.

LEADERS HAVE RALLY AROUND DAY'S CLOSE

New York, May 6—Leaders in Wall St rallied around today's closes and a number showed moderate gains, despite concentrated heavy selling of U. S. Steel and a few other prominent issues in the earlier trading.

Early declines of 1 to more than 2 points were largely cancelled, and several prominent issues closed fractionally to a point higher.

TRADING IS SLUGGISH

The market was extremely sluggish all day and the turnover was only 1,500,000 shares.

U. S. Steel was sold to the accompaniment of estimates of a reduction in unfilled orders from its reported Saturday. The market was so dull, however, that bears declined to withdraw in the final dealings.

U. S. Steel dropped more than 3 to a new low since 1924, and closed off 1¼ net.

Radio was firm all day and closed a point higher, in response to the optimistic report of President Sarnoff at the annual meeting.

General Electric showed a similar gain, as did American Telephone, International Harvester Atchison, Anaconda and Eastman Kodak. Allied Chemical and American Can regained losses of 3½ and 8½ points. American Water Works gained 1 5/8.

Directors of General Motors Corporation today declared the regular quarterly dividend of 75 cents a share on the common stock, as generally expected.

Weekly steel trade reviews were probably as favorable as could be expected at this time of year, when the trend is normally downward.

GASOLINE IS CUT

Continued pressure against commodity prices remains a heavy weight upon industry generally. Gasoline prices were cut further in the East and the Middle West, although the weekly petroleum statistics showed the largest reduction in gasoline stocks on hand in several weeks. Crude production, however, recorded another substantial gain.

The copper market is virtually at a standstill. Custom smelters are now quoting 9 cents a pound, another drop of ¼ cent, and there are rumors of sales under 9 cents. These prices are the lowest since the 1890's. There is considerable unconfirmed gossip in the air, too, of meetings of important producers to discuss shutting down of more high cost properties.

Freight car loadings, as reported for the week ended April 25, were only 720 cars under the preceding week, a negligible change, were it not for the fact that that week usually shows a substantial drop. It also marks a cessation of the upward trend of the preceding fortnight.

Money was easier, with call loans again available at 1 per cent on both sides. Bankers acceptances in turn were cut ⅛ of 1 per cent, the third downward revision in a fortnight, again leading to talk of a low rediscount rate.

Carloadings for Week Hold Steady

Holding steady, the loadings of revenue freight for the week ended April 25 totaled 759,272 cars, the car service divisions of the American Railway Association announced. This was a decrease of but 720 cars from the preceding week, with decreases being reported except coal, ore and livestock, except coal, ore and live stock, which showed increases.

'American Snuff's Outlook Is Good

New York, May 6—Pres. Martin J. Condon of American Snuff Co. stated at annual meeting that sales for the quarter were off about 8 per cent from like period of 1930 and that earnings were off slightly more. Mr. Condon states, however, that the outlook for the balance of the year is good, about the same as it was a year ago.

Decrease in Steel Tonnage Expected

New York, May 6 (AP)—Dow, Jones & Co. says that unfilled orders of the United States Steel Corp. as of April 30, to be reported at noon Saturday, are likely to show a decrease. Estimates are that, without allowance for any possible adjustments, the total will show a drop of between 75,000 and 100,000 tons.

Imports of Hides Increase in Month

Boston Rediscount Rate Made 2 P. C.

Washington, May 6 (AP)—The Federal Reserve Board announced today that the Federal Reserve Banks of Boston and Philadelphia had lowered their rediscount rates. Philadelphia from 2½ to3 per cent and Boston from 2½ to 2 per cent.

Cotton Higher in New York Market

New York, May 6—Cotton futures today closed 7 to 14 points higher. May 9.72, July 9.91-93, Oct. 10.27-28 Dec. 10.51, Jan. 10.61-62, March 10.80-81; spot steady; middling 9.80.

Grains Are Higher in Chicago Market

Chicago, May 6—Corn led grains to a higher finish on the Chicago Board of Trade today. Closing prices for corn were 1 to 2¼c. up, wheat ¼ to ⅝c. higher and oats ½ to ⅝c. better. Rye was 1 to 1¼c

M'KECHNIE STARTS FEUD TO PEP UP TRIBESMEN

FANNING

—By GEORGE UNDERWOOD—

When a Man Bites a Wrestler It's News

WHEN OUR beloved Storm and Strife gets to tossing things we know we are safe as long as she aims at us. We once saw Mrs. Montmorency toss the frying pan at Reginald and hit aristocratic Mrs. Depuyster-Brown on the bean over in the next apartment. We always were of the opinion the female of the species, while more deadly than the male, were bum shots. So when we read about that damozel fanning Babe Ruth and Gehrig down South, and about Vada Corbus, another sweetie, catching for the Joplin Miners, we passed it off with a pooh-pooh. But that was before we saw the Newton high school sweeties tossing the ball around. They were gamboling like lambkins in spring, tra la, all over the greensward this morn ing. Two girl nines were lined up playing ball. And, boy, they were playing ball!

VADA CORBUS

There was one dizzy little blonde who had a hop on the ball like Dazzy Vance's fast one. And curves—ah-h-h! Behave yourself! We are speaking of pitching.

All kidding aside, in that bunch of female tossers there were a couple who could step right in and take their kid brother's place on the nine. One of these days, and maybe not so far in the dim and distant future as we think, there will be women ball players, and good ones, as sure as you're born. But think of what might happen when they get ridding to bases!

THE BASEBALL gals may get the last laugh. When they started to swim we gave 'em the guffaw. Look at the water nymphs now! And how many men tennis players can beat Helen Wills, Sarah Palfrey and other Venuses of the Courts? Let Mister Average Good Golfer go out on the links with Glenna Collett, Helen Hicks, Maureen Orcutt and see what will happen. Fellers, we made a mistake when we gave 'em the vote. They are liable to push us right off the map.

SARAH PALFREY

Back to Newton high. As we watched those girls running, leaping, dancing, laughing out there in the sun and fresh air, untrammeled by skirts and interfering clothes, exercising every muscle in their lithe, supple young bodies, we could not but help think that it will be all for the better for the coming generation. Healthier, stronger mothers will mean a healthier, stronger generation. But we're getting serious. Let's turn to wrestling.

Who's champion now? As we go to press it's Henri Deglane. We don't think the world's heavyweight wrestling title has changed hands again during the past hour. But you never can tell. It passed from Somerberg to George to Lewis to Deglane quicker than Tinker, Evers and Chance used to pull off a double play. Pardon us, Old Death, if there's another new champion when you read this.

M'sieu Deglane won by one bite. The referee disqualified Lewis and the Montreal Commish backed him up. Lewis cannot appear in Montreal again without a muzzle and a leash.

THE WRESTLERS are stealing old-time fight stuff. Recall Mysterious Billy Smith chawing on Joe Welcott's ear? Kid Broad could chaw 'em up a bit, too. We once told you how the Kid wandered into a dog show and was warned by an attendant when he started roughly fondling a couple of Dick Croker's prize bulldogs. The attendant asked the Kid if he wanted to be bitten. The Kid replied that if the dogs bit him, he would bite them back.

HENRI DEGLANE

DEGLANE, the latest mat champion we yet have heard about, is a familiar figure here in Boston. He beat Marin Plestina, Jack Sherry, Joe Malcewicz, and gave Gus Somerberg a red hot tussle before Dyrenmile Gus made him say "Uncle." Stan Stasiak also tossed the Frenchman. We don't recall how the latest champion came out in his bouts with Count Zaranoff.

A famous editor once said that if a dog bit a man it wasn't news, but if a man bit a dog it was news. What is it when a man bites a wrestler?

You can't keep a good man down. Take Lew Fonseca, for instance. Lew led the American League hitters in 1929. He was taken down with scarlet fever before the start of last season and was unable to do himself justice in 1930. Fonseca's fall from form gave Eddie Morgan a chance to play first. He played it so well that Cleveland tried to get rid of Fonseca.

LEW FONSECA

Cleveland tried to trade Lew to the White Sox for Willie Kamm, and said they'd give Fonseca to the Red Sox if they could get the player they wanted. This year Edwin Morgan was a holdout. Fonseca was given a chance as a regular again. Now look at what he is doing! Burning up the league. He's second in club batting and playing a great game in the field. P. S.—Morgan is on the bench.

STAN STASIAK

ALTHOUGH Al Morelli, the Boston College student—Al still is pursuing his studies on the Hill—and Pat McKay are billed in the main bout at the Arena tomorrow night, most of the fans think that the real fireworks will be shot off when Nick Luize and Stan Stasiak collide in the semi-windup. Nick and Stan should make a family row seem as quiet and gentle as a Quaker meeting.

Park us close to the runnaide in the Garden on May 13 when Lou Brouillard of Worcester, who is making the French-Canadian fans forget all about Marc Ouilla Chaydelaine, otherwise and better known as Jack Delaney, crawls through the ropes against Al Mello. The French Canuck and the Portugee should put up a Donnybrook that will make the fans forget an imitation of a wild west in the pawnshop word.

That Brouillard-Mello duel is unique in the fact that it brings together two southpaws. The Worcester Walloper is more of a "switch hitter" than the Lawrence Larruper. Lou bats 'em go from both sides when the going gets hot. He's what you might call a "two-gun man," even though he is a portsider.

BOOTLEG BALL O.K. ONLY ON 19TH HOLE

By BILL GRIMES

Due to the fact that some professionals are "bootlegging" the old ball, the Massachusetts Golf Association has taken a stand that if any player is detected using other than the prescribed agate he will be disqualified from all open and invitation tournaments.

The lighter ball is going to cause trouble in open tournaments, for despite the fact that there is no appeal from the M. G. A. decision some players are sure to take a gamble. They have risked expulsion in the past by "chiseling" strokes which is far harder to get away with than using a smaller ball.

It is almost impossible to distinguish between the new and old ball without a gauge. In fact there are some of the lighter balls which can be dropped through the 1.68 gauge without touching the inside edge.

The fact that, as far as is known there is not a new ball which is marked 1.68, is an invitation to the boys to slip in a smaller and heavier ball, when playing a hole against the wind, or in bad cross wind, and then replacing it when the conditions are favorable.

On the whole, we do not begrudge Freddie Corcoran his job as the M. G. A. representative in open tournaments this season. He has experienced considerable trouble with the short counters in the past and with the possibility of the boys dropping in illegal balls, Corcoran is going to be especially alert stamping out the type, who made the expression "Golf is a gentleman's game," a fallacy.

There was a decided shakeup in the standing of the Boston Four Ball League after the third round yesterday. Commonwealth was eased out of first place by The Country Club, which is now sharing the top honors with Charles River.

Red Brown, The Country Club, was 75 with his own ball at Commonwealth and was mainly responsible for Charlie Crane and Joe Galvin dropping three points.

There is a rumor around today that if John Black or Fred Thayer find either Frank Craven or "Skeeter Beata" McElwee within gun shot of Wollaston, the Charles River pair are to be "put on the spot."

Emery P. Stratton, Brae Burn, turned in his best round of the season yesterday at Woodland. Stratton was 35—36—71, with consecutive "birds" on the fourth and fifth holes.

Judging from the article of golf Milan Heath played for Brae Burn against Woodland, he has an excellent chance of making the Harvard varsity. Heath is one of the most improved players in this section and his game has caught the eye of Coach Burt Nicoll.

With three matches played, only 19 separate the first eight teams in the Boston Four Ball League.

The Massachusetts Dental Society will hold an all day tournament at the Charles River Country Club on Friday. Dr. "Vic" Carpenter will be out early in all his splendor and is favored to lead the field.

Carl Treat is the busiest greenskeeper in this vicinity. The Wood land putting surfaces were winter killed and then to make matters worse, it was impossible for Treat to get any water to bring in his greens. As a result, he has been out working on the course from before daylight until after dark. Treat put the water to the greens last night and they are expected to be in better condition for the two day four ball tournament than they have been at any time this spring.

Fred T. Moore Jr., was slated to make his debut with the Woodland four ball team yesterday, but at the last minute he was sidetracked. Young Moore is deserving of a chance with the Auburndale team and if paired with a steady veteran he will make the grade.

Pirates' Hurler Starts Training

Pittsburgh, May 6 (AP)—Summer's just around the corner, but Steve Swetonic, Pittsburgh Pirate pitcher, is just going into spring training. When he reached the training camp at Paso Robles, Cal., an old injury which bothered Steve's arm last year showed up again, and he was sent back to Pittsburgh for an operation. The arm has fully recovered and Steve now will get in shape for early.

Diamond Dust

—By JOE CASHMAN—

The Braves have sent Charlie Wilson, young third sacker, back to Rochester. He was purchased from the Red Wings on trial. Judge Fuchs agreeing to pay $30,000 for him if he made good. He was the regular hot corner guardian at the start of the season, but was benched in favor of "Whitey" Dreesen when his hitting fell off and it was finally decided that he wasn't worth the price asked for him.

The Red Sox and Athletics will play the third final and rubber game of their series at Shibe Park this afternoon, with Jack Russell and Rube Walberg as the opposing moundsmen. What has become of "Lefty" Grove, who hasn't worked for nearly a week, nobody seems to know.

The A's won the second game and evened up the series behind the excellent pitchin, of Big George Earnshaw, who gave the Sox but six hits and fanned 10. The only run he allowed was a circuit swat over the rightfield wall by Earl Webb in the seventh.

Red Worthington's ninth-inning home run, which tied the score in the second game and which sailed out of the park just an inch or so inside the foul stick. It would have been a fo- last year, when drives were judged according to where they went out of sight and not where they leave the park, as is the rule this season.

Schulmerich and Worthington will receive and deserve much credit for the Tribal win but Fred Maguire had as much to do with it as anybody else, if not more. He made a divinp back-handed stop to the left of second base of a drive by Catcher Davis with a runner on first in the ninth which had it gone through would in all probability have ruined the Braves' chances of winning.

What the Stars Did

By the Associated Press

Fred Fitzsimmons, Giants—Shut out Robins 3-0, with three hits, allowing only one man to reach second.

Johnny Watwood, White Sox—Hit single, double, triple and sacrifice in four times up, to lead in 7-3 victory over Detroit.

George Earnshaw, Athletics—Held Red Sox to six hits and fanned 10, to earn 6-1 victory.

Ben Chapman, Yankees—Drove in five runs with two singles and double in 15-5 rout of Senators.

MELLO MEETS JOHN L. SULLIVAN

Yes, the pachyderm's name is John L. Sullivan and he's one strong fellow, just like the Boston Strong Boy, whose name will live forever in the annals of sport. Al Mello, the New England welterweight champion, in training for his coming title bout with Lou Brouillard, was introduced to John L. at the circus. The pair hit it off with each other splendidly. Just before the camera man pressed the button, Al whispered in John L.'s ear what he expects to do to Brouillard. "Knock him cuckoo," advised Mister Sullivan, "as my namesake used to do."

BRAVES TAKE ANOTHER ONE FROM PHILS

By JOE CASHMAN

Harmony is usually a great asset to a ball club, but not always. A few feuds among the players are sometimes of greater value.

Our Braves were one big happy family until Sunday last and they walked off the field that afternoon with four straight defeats to their credit or, rather, discredit.

Needless to say, this stump didn't meet with Will McKechnie's approval, and he decided that if the team couldn't win with peace reigning, it might be wise to see what it would do with a little trouble brewing.

It took the pilot some little time to discover a way to start a friendly row, but he finally hit upon it. He made Wes Schulmerich a regular outfielder. And since then the Tribe hasn't lost a game.

"How come the promotion of Schulmerich, a quiet, friendly, easy-going young man, caused friction?" you ask.

Well, be patient, and we will explain.

It seems that two years ago both Schulmerich and Wally Berger were knocking the cover off that old apple out in the Pacific Coast League and there was much argument as to who was the better hitter.

Berger's admirers claimed the decision when he made good with the Braves last season, but when the local club took on Schulmerich this season, the latter's friends predicted that he would quickly make Boston fans forget all about his rival.

Red Worthington Enters Competition

Then Robert "Red" Worthington, one of the International League's most feared sluggers and another native of the Coast, was taken on by the Warriors and his gang began telling the world that he would make both Berger and Schulmerich look like patookas.

Naturally, each of the three players wished to prove his boosters correct and impatiently awaited the start of the season to do so.

But when the campaign opened Schulmerich was on the bench, and a few days later Worthington was injured.

"Red" finally returned, but by that time both he and Berger had apparently forgotten all about their rivalry for both fell into a slump and the team started to flop after a great start.

McKechnie then decided that something must be done to pep the boys up, and remembering the preseason arguments as to the merits of his three fence sluggers, he hit upon the scheme of reviving the rivalry by making Schulmerich a regular.

Schulmerich Puts Pep Into Team

Schulmerich went in determined to show Berger and Worthington how to hit, and they became equally determined to steal the glory, with the result that the whole team began hitting and running again.

In their first game together, which the Braves won, 4 to 3, Worthington hit two singles and a triple, scored a run and knocked in another. Schulmerich hit a single and knocked in two runs, and Berger came through with a double and scored a run.

Yesterday, when the Tribe again triumphed, 5 to 4, Berger was stopped, but Schulmerich scored the second Tribal run with a homer and knocked in the winning run in the ninth with a triple, while Worthington tied the score in the ninth with a homer.

The Phils got off to a four-run lead in the second inning on four hits, including a circuit drive by Buzz Arlett, but they never had a chance with Worthington and Schulmerich out there fighting to prove who was the greater hitter.

MALONEY AND SCHAAF MEET ON MAY 26

Jim Maloney and Ernie Schaaf were matched today to meet in a 10-round bout at Boston Garden, Tuesday night, May 26.

The signing of Maloney and Schaaf by Matchmaker Billy Ames, closed the most important heavyweight bout for Boston since Jack Sharkey and Jim Maloney battled in June in 1925.

This bout has been hanging fire for more than two years, but no matchmaker has been able to get them together until now.

Schaaf helped Maloney train for Delaney and Sharkey. It was reported Schaaf had once knocked Maloney down in training. This is said to be the reason why Maloney would not meet Schaaf.

Shamus and Ernie will go into training immediately.

Farrelon Golf

By JOHN FARRELL
(Former American Open Champion)
As Told to Alan Gouldthe Associated Press

BUNKER HOTS

Bunker shots are subject to change because of the wide range of circumstances under which they may have to be made, but I would set forth these few general, simple principles in the use of the niblick:

2—Get a good, firm footing.
5—Keep the head down.

If you have ever noticed Bobby Jones, you know how easy an explosion shot can look. Just a flick of the wrists, with the club faced away, the head going from the outside inward, to give the necessary "cut."

It is a big mistake to use a full swing on a bunker shot. There are occasions, shots requiring it, but generally a short swing gets far better results.

All this, as I say, refers to (se o. the niblick, preferably heavy one.

In a shallow trap, with distance to be covered, an iron can often be used to advantage perhaps even a spoon. I have seen Jones use a spoon from traps on occasion when the hazard permitted it.

Carideo Stars in East Boston Victory

Patsy Carideo of the East Boston High nine pitched a 10 to 8, 12-inning victory over Charlestown High yesterday at East Boston.

The Bunker Hillers led it up in the fourth and later led, 7 to 7, but East Boston put over two runs in the ninth to tie the score.

In the 12th, DiDonato singled and stole. McCaul smashed to the box and DiDonato overslid third. Berg reached on an infield hit and McCaul went to third. Cosetto poked one down third on the foul line to score the winning run when the ball took a bad hop past McElaney.

Booth May Return to Yale Infield

New Haven, Ct., May 6—Albin Booth, Yale's most brilliant allaround athlete, may return to the baseball infield in tomorrow's game with Holy Cross. He was changed to center field by Coach Joe Wood last month and his successor, Ned Warren, has played that position brilliantly.

Dick Kimball, captain and first baseman of the freshman last year, has been used at third for his batting, but is unfamiliar with the position. Today Wood tried Booth, Pat McGowan and Artie Taylor there.

Our Lady's Nine Leading League

The tie for first place in the Greater Boston Catholic High School Baseball League was broken when Our Lady's high school nine of Newton rallied in the eighth inning for three runs and a 6 to 4 decision over the St. Charles high school of Waltham.

The game was keenly contested, with each side having the lead twice, only to lose it. Entering the last of the eighth St. Charles led, 4 to 3. Murphy's single, a pass to Manning, Hart's sacrifice and single by Cannon and Cramow produced three tallies for Our Lady's and gave them the league lead.

WESLEY SCHULMERICH

Born, Hillsboro, Ore., Aug. 21, 1900.

Was a baseball and football star for four years at Oregon State College and upon his graduation in 1924 he joined the Clarks club in the Butte Mining League.

The Los Angeles club of the Pacific Coast League signed him late that season. He won a regular outfield berth on the club in '25 and held it until he was sold to the Braves this past winter.

His first season at Los Angeles he hit his .319, in '29 he brought his mark up .357 and last year he clicked the agate at a .380 clip.

He's a good fielder, very fast and has a fine arm.

He is married and still resides in Hillsboro, Ore.

Babe Ruth as I Know Him

—By SUPT. CROWLEY—

and is happy-go-lucky in all things, many persons who do not know him believe that he is clumsy and lumbering—and some even believe that he probably is stupid.

There is nothing farther from fact, because Ruth's training in baseball has perfected, as it were, he is the daintiest of eaters, and it is at table that you notice most particularly how carefully kept are his hands, and their only relation to the popular conception of "lunch hooks" is their size.

Ever since Babe has been in the money he has dressed as if each day were Easter Sunday—perfectly in accord with what the well-dressed man is wearing. Good clothes are rather a fad with him, and he displays good taste in his selections for the daily ensemble.

There is nothing better or bigger about the big Babe, however, than his heart and its capacity for sympathy. I think the most pathetic scene I ever witnessed was at the Peter Bent Brigham hospital when that little blind and crippled fellow came to say goodbye to the Babe, who had sent him about a bushel of candy.

The sheer emotion at the plight of the little fellow who spoke so bravely and whose voice never quivered as he spoke of his hopes, was so intense that I thought the arms of the Babe's wheel-chair would snap with the powerful grips he has on them—fighting to keep back tears that were swelling in his eyes.

Farrell, Sarazen to Play in British Open

New York, May 6 (INS)—Johnny Farrell and Gene Sarazen, former holders of the U. S. open golf championship, will sail for England next Wednesday night in quest of the British open championship, which will be contested over the historic Carnoustie links in Scotland starting June 1.

Besides Farrell and Sarazen, Americans in the British classic will include MacDonald Smith, Joe Turnesa, Horton Smith, Tony Manero and Joe Kirkwood.

Max Picks Camp in Pennsylvania

Philadelphia, May 6 (AP)—The State Athletic Commission announced today that Max Schmeling would train at Conneaut Lake, in northwestern Pennsylvania, for his bout with Young Stribling in Cleveland, July 2.

Schmeling and his manager, Joe Jacobs have been granted licenses by the commission, as permits are required where admissions are charged to training exhibitions.

Spring Drill for Vermont Gridmen

Burlington, Vt., May 6—Coaches Dana and Lavine, of the Vermont football candidates through light exercises on the second day of the annual spring practice.

The sessions, which are to last one week, are for little more than to give the coaches an idea of whom they will have as a nucleus for the eleven this fall. Work today consisted of little more than throwing and receiving passes.

Rosenbloom Wins

Portland, Ore., May 6 (AP)—Maxie Rosenbloom, world's light heavyweight champion, punched out a decision over Leo Lomski of Aberdeen in 10 rounds.

SUNDAY HOCKEY IS FAVORED

BITTER FIGHT EXPECTED ON BILL

The legislative committee on legal affairs last night reported favorably bills legalizing the playing of indoor hockey, basketball and bowling on Sundays.

There were, however, five dissenters from the committee report. The dissenters are Senators Joseph D. Cotton of Lexington, Frank D. Mackay of Quincy and Rep. Kendrick H. Washburn of Middleboro, Philip R. Stacy of Haverhill and Harold E. Cole of Taunton. As a result, a bitter battle is expected when the matter comes up for action in the Legislature.

Basketball and indoor hockey would be legal between 2 and 6 o'clock on Sunday afternoons and bowling would be permitted on Sunday between the hours of 2 and 11 p. m. in cities and towns which accepted the act.

RYDER PICKS B. C. TO WIN

Boston College and West Point will hold their annual dual track meet at West Point next Saturday afternoon. Thirty Maroon and Gold athletes will make the trip to the Point. The team will leave next Friday night, accompanied by Coach Jack Ryder.

For the first time the Eagles are figured to have a better than even chance to down the Knydets. Last year the Army gave B. C. quite a decisive beating. But Coach Ryder figures that his team has the edge this spring.

According to Ryder, the two teams will not be more than 10 points apart when the final score is announced. He is looking for his charges to win the 440-yard run, the 880-yard run, the mile, two mile, discus, hammer throw, high jump, and the 220-yard low hurdles.

This reckoning leaves the soldiers the two dashes, the high hurdles, the broad jump and the shot put. West Point was the victor in the half-mile sprint relay contest at the Penn relays a couple weeks ago and will practically sweep the shorter races. On the other hand the Eagles are equally strong in the middle distance runs and should take all three places in the half mile.

Richards Confident He Will Beat Tilden

America's professional tennis champion, Vincent Richards, is confident as the date for his match for the world's pro title approaches at the Boston Garden the night of May 12. Opposing him will be his old rival, Big Bill Tilden.

sted values. As you see the world, it is sadly out of joint and you wonder why others are so indifferent to the pearl of great price hidden in your personality. Young man, behind your inability to connect with life lurks an egregious self-centeredness and an exaggerated idea of your own consequence."

"Avery, I can't hear it. You are too funny to be borne. Stop it, dear! How can one take you seriously?"

"But I am serious, mother. I'm clowning Hamlet for you."

How cleverly handsome he was, his father's son around the eyes and brow, but son of his mother in the lean, lithe figure. As he sat there on the edge of th table, dangling one long, cleverly clad leg and showing, as if to excellent stage direction, his clean blade of profile, he was like many of these well-made youths in English society comedies.

"Avery, I simply must go. My advice to you is to pack yourself back to college without even letting your father know about this —brainstorm."

"Mother, I'm in hell!"

"Then you are in some trouble, son," she cried with sudden terror darting to her eyes.

"I know, Mother, I know, it all sounds like tommy-rot," he cried, and struck his breast with a gesture that immediately became sophomoric to her, once he followed it up with words.

"But can't you understand? I must get away. Alone. To think—to create. It's too cluttered up here. I can't stand the clutter. I'm sick of being me. And doing the things a fellow has to do if he is me. Give me a year or two on my own, Mother. Get Father to. I want to think. I want to think my way out . . ."

"Of what?"

"How do I know? How can I try to tell it, when you sit there thinking of other things. When you won't understand."

How dear he was! How inexpressibly dear. Hurtingly young. Silly, sensitive, sophomoric dreamer. She had never seen him like this. At least not exactly like this. She wanted to take him in her arms...Ramon was waiting.

"Mother dear, be a brick. Put it up to Father before I have to face the music. Make him see that I need a couple of years away—to myself——"

"Well a-w-a-y, I understand, Mother. Coming from me, the suggestion will only antagonize him. I can't be myself with Father—any more than I some times think he can be with me."

"Hush, Avery."

There was one principle of hers which Jenny had never even bent, much less broken. She could not bring herself to discuss her husband's shortcomings with his children.

"I must go," she cried, wildly. "If you insist upon coming home from college with such ideas, son, it is manlier that you should face your father yourself. Tell him just what you have told me."

"Then begin to learn now. I cannot always be buffer between you. Tell him what you've told me."

"Here he comes. Tell him now."

"Mother, for God's sake! You wouldn't do that——"

For the first time in her life, Jenny would. She was off and gone, down the corridor, frantic with haste, just as Rarick, attracted by his son's voice, paused at his door to peer in.

(Does Avery summon up courage to tell his father what he has told his mother? Read tomorrow's interesting instalment.)

MORELLI IS RATED HIGH BY STASIAK

By JACK CONWAY

Stanley Stasiak, better known as THE Lion, says Al Morelli, his youthful pupil in the gentle art of wrestling, will wrap Pat McKay up when they battle in a finish bout, best two falls out of three, at Paul Bowser's show at the Arena tomorrow night.

"I've seen a flock of youngsters crash into the wrestling game," said Stasiak, "and this Morelli is the best looking one of the whole lot. He has a world of natural class and the strength of a two horsepower engine. I'm no infant, and I'll confess he has lifted me up and slammed me to the floor.

"McKay has had more experience than Morelli, but the latter is one of those natural athletes who is going places."

Stanley has a little argument of his own to settle tomorrow night. He will take on Nick Lutze of Southern California in a time limited bout. Stasiak gave Lutze a hack eye in a recent contest in New York, and now promises the popular Nick a pair of black optics. The Lion says there is not any depression in black eyes when he is the party of the second part.

Count Zarynoff and Louie Lowe will collide in the semifinal, Charles (Buck) Weaver will take on Joe Cook, "Pete" Carmichael will mingle with Abe Kaplan. Kewpie Kilroy will battle Jack Albright, George Vassell will quarrel with Alex Anderson, while Farmer George McLeod will have John Maloney as an opponent.

Wladek Zbyszko to Take on Garibaldi

Wladek Zbyszko, Polish heavyweight wrestler, will take the place of Rudy Dusek against Gino Garibaldi in the 60-minute semi-final at Ray Fabiani's show at the Boston Garden on Monday night.

Zbyszko should make a good substitute. He is a former world's champion and has shown in Hub rings on numerous occasions.

Fabiani first brought Whiskers Kaminkoff here as a substitute. If Zbyszko goes over as well as Kaminkoff did, the fans will be satisfied.

Hans Steinke and Tiny Roebuck, who collide in the feature tussle which will be one fall to a finish, are busy with the finishing touches to their training.

Officials Named for Boys' Swim Meet

Harold S. Titen, swimming coach of Harvard; Herbert Holm, member of the New England A. A. U. registration committee; Capt. Jack Wallace, coach at Boston University, and Lawrence J. Johnson, New England swimming official, will serve as members of the committee to direct the novice tournament to be held by the Boys' Club of Boston, which starts next Monday.

Boys from 8 to 18 years of age, who have never competed for a club, school, Y. M. C. A., or other organization team or competed unattached in open meets, are eligible.

MR. BOSTON

By JACK CONWAY

"The winner of the Al Mello-Lou Brouillard bout at the Boston Garden on May 15," said Mr. Boston, "will be presented with the New England welterweight title belt provided he will agree to defend his laurels within 90 days.

"I also look as though the victor of the Mello-Brouillard mill would receive a shot at Jimmy McLarnin.

"Jake Zeramby, through Al Lacy, announces he is ready to step and lick any of our noble lightweights. Zeramby has come through with victories in his last five starts.

"Now its Henri Degiane, the world's heavyweight wrestling champion. Montreal fans went wild when Degiane was declared the winner over Strangler Lewis. The Strangler held his title less than a month. One has to give Lewis credit for agreeing to risk his title against such a tough hombre as Degiane.

"Terry Mitchell of Somerville, who loses punches to Harry Alies at Brockton on Friday night, has licked Big Boy Rawson twice during the past three months, while he also scored victories over Dynamite Dan Martin, Steve Gorman and Ug Gibson.

Tony Canzoneri to Box Kid Chocolate Next

"Tony Canzoneri, world's lightweight and junior welterweight champion, has agreed to defend both titles against Kid Chocolate in a 15-round bout at Ebbets Field, Brooklyn in July under the direction of Jimmy Johnston. If returned a winner, Canzoneri will then mingle with Billy Petrolle at Ebbets Field, provided the Fargo Express gets by Jimmy McLarnin.

"Eddie Mack has mapped out a busy program for himself in announcing the Argonne A. A. will stage weekly boxing shows at Braves Field beginning next Tuesday night.

"Jack Sharkey will leave for New York next week to open training at Stillman's Gym for his mix with Primo Carnera at Brooklyn on June 10.

"Andy Callahan, New England lightweight champion, will have Lou Paterno of Worcester as his opponent in a 10-round bout at Mechanics Hall, Worcester, tomorrow night. Callahan is a choice to win."

Shenecossett Golf Play Set for July

New London, Ct., May 6 (AP)—The 13th annual women's invitation golf tournament of the Shenecossett Country Club will be held July 10 to 17, inclusive at the Eastern Point links, it was made known today by George W. Carroll, Jr., chairman of the tournament committee.

The men's invitation tournament is set for July 23 to 26, inclusive.

Listening Post

A WHILE BACK, we reported how a circus broadcast was attempted in the West. There has been some promotion on the air having to do with the big top show now current in Boston, but an actual three ring description has not taken place. Since a circus is more or less regarded as a baseball or football classic, it seems that an endeavor to describe at least one performance would be a worth while experiment.

THERE is little likelihood that the practice will ever become general. Show bosses think it would hurt the gate while the radio rajahs in turn feel they should be paid station time for any ballyhoo of the sort.

• • •

NAMES IS NAMES: Ford Bond, before becoming an NBC announcer, sold securities, though he is not exactly of "stocky" build.

• • •

REPETITION of musical selections is causing this Listening Poster to feel the necessity for wielding an axe on a set that cost quite a bit. For goodness sake, broadcasters mix 'em up.

• • •

TAP DANCERS eagerly await the perfection of television. Unless static is overcome, buck and wing artists may find their offerings a bit distorted.

• • •

ONE of the most prominent and oldest business firms in the city of Boston is rumored as signed up by WNAC, which station along with others have tried for many years to land the account.

• • •

NOW THAT "Just a Gigolo" has passed away, as the words said it would, the world and radio goes on without it, thank goodness.

On the Air

To offset the jinx that might hover about her 13th interview, Louella Parsons, Hearst film editor, has selected Eddie Cantor as her interviewee o'er WNAC at 8:30 tonight. Eddie and his quips can ruin any fox and tonight will be no exception. The comedian will intersperse his humor with serious answers to Miss Parsons' questions about his past, present and future.

WEDNESDAY seems to be ladies' night on the air. In addition to the Louella Parsons feature coming over the ether tonight, we'll be Gladys Rice on the WEEI at 8:30 p'gram. Miss Rice sings selections from "The Red Mill" and other concert numbers. . . . Grace Hayes, vaudeville and musical comedy star, contributes vocally to the WNAC at 10:30 feature. . . . Ruth Breton, violinist who has skyrocketed to concert fame from her home in Louisville to soloist with leading symphony orchestras, will be heard through WAAB at 10:45. . . . A radio version of "H. M. S. Pinafore," the Gilbert and Sullivan satire opera, will be offered over WBZA at 9:30. Along with Mary McCoy, featured singers are Reinald Werrenrath, Tandy MacKenzie and Leonard Stokes.

Although his talk is directed at young writers, we have an idea the old-timers can garner much from Charles Hanson Towne over WAAB at 6 tonight. Towne, editor of Harper's Bazaar and contributor to the N. Y. American, will give advice on the "how" of submitting stories for publication.

HOT AIR CHATTER . . . Wonder if Gar Wood, speedboat king, talks as fast as he races when he is heard over WEEI at 10:30 this eve. . . . Rudy Vallee intends to write for a living when he hangs up his megaphone. Not that he'll have to write to exist, but it will give him a chance to get back at sundry critics . . . The legitimate stage went Hollywoody last year, but this year Thespians have gone completely radio. Stage names in their names . . . radio are few; ready made folk imported from other fields, hold sway on the air today.—M. G. M.

German-Rumanian Trade Pact Is Off

Vienna, Austria, May 6 (AP)—Negotiations between Germany and Rumania for a commercial treaty on a basis of preferential treatment have been broken off and the German delegation returned to Berlin yesterday instead of proceeding to Bucharest.

Radio Instruction

Like other professions, radio rewards only those who excel. The poorly trained will never rise higher than the niche in which they started. Others will climb step by step to positions of power in radio-telephony broadcasting sound picture aviation radio radio merchandising. And among those will be those who planned years in advance studied worked! Which will it be?

Port of Boston

By JAMES J. DELANEY

That the summer shipping season is well on the way is indicated by the fact that the Port of Boston will see four big arriving and departing transatlantic liners over the coming week-end.

Two will bring passengers from European ports to Boston and the other two will take passengers from Boston.

Opening the service for 1931, the steamer Camerania, Anchor Line, will come here from Glasgow, Belfast and Londonderry, docking at East Boston Saturday.

The White Star liner Britannic will pick up passengers for Queenstown and Liverpool, while the Transylvania will pick up passengers for London and Glasgow.

THE REAL COST OF THE WORLD WAR

Present realities are demonstrating that the earlier short term inflationary gains were in part illusory.

The dire facts constitute a confirmation of the thesis set forth by Norman Angell in his book, "The Great Illusion," that destructive warfare is harmful to victors as well as to vanquished.

Before the setback, foreign propagandists, seeking a remission of debts due the United States Treasury, fallaciously argued that America had benefitted economically more from war than it would have gained from peace.

* * *

Carl Snyder, statistician of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, thinks that the measure of the cost of the war was in the failure of world production to make the customary normal growth. Mr. Snyder estimates that up to date the war has cost the world nearly 400 billions of dollars.

"The price of the war," the statistician pointed out, "was a blasting paralysis of growth from which apparently we have only recently recovered, and which will apparently never be made up. This was, to far as we may judge, a lasting loss!"

The authentic character of the loss was hidden from popular understanding during the earlier prosperity, which was to a large extent devoted to restoration of what had been destroyed, rather than to the creation of entirely new wealth.

Out of the suffering incidental to the present world-wide depression, people are at length recognizing that the world spent a large part of its patrimony in the great war.

Part of this accumulated treasure was literally blown up with the aid of machine guns. Part of it disappeared in the overdraught on accumulated supplies made by warring nations, which took workers out of productive channels and turned them to destruction.

Other subtler war activities also made for impoverishment. Mr. Snyder has hinted as to these losses resulting from the diversion of workers from the production of wealth creating to wealth destroying activities.

* * *

When the final economic audit has been made, something should also be charged to the ruthless elimination of wealth creating human units and to the physical impairment of many others.

Care for the injured and pensions, though constituting a legitimate claim on humane society, nevertheless add to the economic strain.

Twelve and a half years after the armistice, the world is learning emphatically that it has paid a heavy price for five years of warfare.

The world is just beginning to find out that it is not as well off as it thought it was.

The balance at the bank is not as great as it was and some checks are coming backed marked, "No funds!"

In the light of these cool, post-war accountings, it becomes clear that the price the people can reasonably afford to pay for peace-building statesmanship is truly prodigious.

Save Our Railroads!

New England Wants No Outside Domination

New England must keep control over her fine New England railroads.

Once their control is lost to the Pennsylvania, the Van Sweringens or any other alien interest, New England will become a financial, industrial and business dependency or province, no longer master of her own destiny, but subject to the caprices and whims of Wall Street in New York and Broad Street in Philadelphia.

That admonition and that warning has been uttered repeatedly by the Boston Evening American to the people of New England.

Now it finds reiteration in every syllable from no less a person than President Daniel Willard of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad.

Mr. Willard is not only President of one of the great railroads of the world. He is not only one of the ablest railroad executives in the history of this country. He is a native Vermonter with the blood of New England in his family more than four generations. He understands New England, comprehends her sentiment and is appreciative that her railroad independence is necessary to her future, if her future is to be successful.

We want all the railroad service we can get. And we want reasonable rates for freight and passenger service.

But we want the trunk lines to come into New England on an equal basis, on the terms not that they dictate but that the people of New England decide for themselves.

Willard says alien trunk-line domination will not mean an extra pound of freight for New England. All the railroads can give us is service. They want to come in here to acquire our business, not to supply us with business.

So long as we are the customer, whose business is sought, we ought to dictate our own terms and not permit our business, as Willard says, to be manipulated by "any sinister or selfish influences" primarily interested in their own affairs and not in the development of New England.

Our Notable Visitors

The tent revival with its impassioned oratory has led others up the trail.

Yet thousands, hundreds of thousands, have been brought from crime and depravity to peace and contentment by the simple street-corner services of the Salvation Army.

They have gone to the depths of our moral fabric, rescuing men and women unreached by any other form of appeal, just as they scorned the relative safety of headquarters and got doughnuts and coffee to the doughboys in the front-line trenches.

General Edward J. Higgins, commander-in-chief of the International Salvation Army; Mrs. Higgins and their staff, will be with us in Boston today and tomorrow.

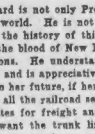
But, as the representatives of an organization with such a remarkable record, they should receive every ounce of cordiality which the people of this city possibly can expand.

'Fibbing' and Dreaming

By WINIFRED BLACK

"WHEN I was a little girl," said the woman we all love, "I used to tell the most astonishing tales of my adventures.



Winifred Black

"I never came home from school without meeting some richly dressed woman who wanted to adopt me, or some marvelous looking old gentleman, who told me he wished he had a dainty little granddaughter — just like me.

"And I met tigers, in the little grove of maple trees near the school house.

"One day I was a little late coming home, and I told my mother I was late because I was riding all over town on a snowy-white horse.

"The horse wasn't just a common horse, it was a Palfrey, and it had a silver mane, all crinkly like Aunt Leana's hair when she put it up in hairpins to go to the strawberry festival.

"And the Palfrey's tail was crinkly, too, and it was so long that it swept the ground, and the Palfrey had great flashing black eyes, and tiny little hoofs, and what do you think? Those hoofs were shod in silver.

"My mother tried to get me to admit that I was fibbing, but I stuck to my story.

"When my father came home, my mother told him he would have to take me upstairs and give me a whipping, and cure me of telling such lies.

"My father took me upstairs and he sat down in his own great chair by the window and he put me on his lap and talked with me.

"'Now child,' he said, 'tell me the truth, all about the white horse and everything.'"

"And I told him and he laughed a little and then he shook his head.

"'My dear,' he said, 'you have a wonderful imagination, it's going to get you into a great deal of trouble some day.'

"But if you manage it right it will bring you great happiness and many friends.'

The woman we all love looked into the fire and I could see that she saw there in the dancing flames the dear face of the father who tried so hard to make her understand the difference between a fairy tale and a regular whopper.

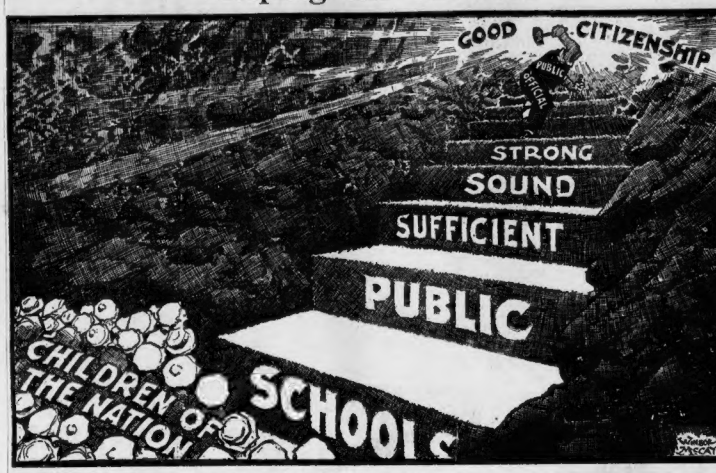
Helping the Climbers



The greatest task that faces Boston and New England this year and every year is to prepare its children for useful citizenship.

The boys and girls of today are the men and women who tomorrow will hold the destiny of their country in their keeping.

James Russell Lowell said, "It was in making education not only common to all, but in some cases compulsory, that the destiny of the free Republics of America was pretty well settled."

And Pope wrote, "'Tis education forms the common mind, just as the twig is bent the tree's inclined."

America is the melting pot of many races. If they are to be fused unitedly, patriotically and successfully, it is in the furnace of public education.

Boston, the birthplace of American education, the home of Horace Mann, must give to her children education in modern, sanitary, wholesome surroundings, just as Brookline, richest town in the world, and every other New England city and town must do it under their common heritage as the sanctuary of the first free education in this country.

Building new, modern schoolhouses in the old communities as well as in the new is a prudent investment for the future.

Listen, World! -:- By Elsie Robinson

You've Got to Gamble

Elsie Robinson

There's that job at Brown's . . . or that chance to open up a little coffee shop . . . or maybe you could go back to the ranch. But any way you can figure it, there's risk. You try to think it out calmly. You remember the old saying — "Look at all sides of the question."

You look at 'em, but the more you look, the more confused and discouraged you feel. Then what's the use of looking?

Mighty little use, partner. The lad who looks at all sides of the question, generally ends up by not taking any side. He just spends his time gazing around. While some reckless chap, who dared to take a chance, cuts in under his nose and grabs the Big Opportunity.

Suppose Columbus had looked at all sides of the question before he set westward sail—where would he have stayed? He would have stayed right on the beach.

Suppose Lindbergh had stopped, looked and listened before he hopped off across the Atlantic, where would he be now? Playing pee-wee golf or planting dahlias or engaging in some other 100 per cent safe pastime.

For remember all the sound and reasonable advice is AGAINST these various junkets. The respectable folk all pooh-poohed them, called them fool-hardy. Yet ACTUALLY ALL BIG HUMAN ACHIEVEMENTS HAVE BEEN PERFORMED BY PEOPLE WHO WERE TEMPORARILY FOOLS AND FANATICS . . . WHO REFUSED TO LOOK AT ALL SIDES OF THE QUESTION AND STUBBORNLY BANKED ALL THEIR FAITH AND FURY ON ONE IDEA.

We all want to do something big. We complain bitterly because we can't. We blame other people or circumstances for holding us back. We envy those fortunate ones who do achieve. We say that they had all the luck . . . they didn't have our handicaps—

As a matter of fact, they had exactly as many handicaps . . . faced just as great danger of failure—BUT THEY DIDN'T STOP TO COUNT THE HANDICAPS . . . THEY DIDN'T DULL THEIR FIGHTING EDGE BY WEIGHING RISKS AND DREADING DANGERS. THEY WANTED TO DO SOMETHING. THERE WERE ENDLESS REASONS AGAINST DOING IT. BUT THEY TOOK A CHANCE AND WENT IT BLIND . . . AND WON!

You can do almost anything you want to do if you'll use enough faith and fury, AND CONCENTRATE. But you'll never succeed in anything if you scatter your energy and try to play safe. You can't live big unless you gamble.

"Yes, that listens fine," you say, "but many a big gambler has failed."

Sure—and so has many a stand patter. Failure is a hazard every man must face. There are circumstances beyond the control of even the most fervent fighter . . . Lindbergh MIGHT have failed. But even at that, they would have had it all over the fatheads who yelled warnings from the beach. FOR THE GAMBLER, EVEN THOUGH HE FAILS, HAS KNOW THE THRILL AND PRIDE OF TAKING A CHANCE. And that's the best thing life can give to any man. It isn't the cash in your pocket that makes life worth while . . . it's the steel in your spine and the flame in your heart.

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

Philandering Husbands

SOMEONE wants to know why I write so often on this topic—philandering husbands.

* * *

First, because there are so many of them, in these hightepping, carefree days. Second, because they are a comparatively new phenomenon.

* * *

The big question, which seems to be troubling many middle-aged wives, is the problem of whether to divorce a philandering husband or to forgive and forget. Whether to give him the air or to laugh it off.

* * *

That all depends, dear heart, on the man, the circumstances, and the amount of your love for him. If a man WANTS to go, for the love of heaven and your peace of mind let him GO! Once you have lost your hold on his heart, it is useless to try to hang onto the coattails of his conscience or to clutch him and drag him back by the grappling hook of the law.

* * *

But, most wandering husbands DON'T want to be lost. They merely want to be mislaid, for a little while—and then, to come back to Mother, and be forgiven. And, that's where a woman's heart is torn with doubt and uncertainty.

* * *

When a man double-crosses a woman for whom he still feels this affection, it is not because he's "smart," but because he's dumb. Dumb and blind! The day always comes, when he discovers that he's no Casanova; and that a flapper's love is 99 per cent pure golddigging. Then, if a wife can forgive and forget — particularly FORGET — she can at least salvage the old comradeship. Which is about all that matters, anyway.

48 Years of Noble Effort

Miss Lawrence Honor to Boston's Schools

Miss Emma E. Lawrence is completing forty-eight years as a teacher in the Boston public schools, the last forty-four years in the Martin School on Huntington Avenue, ever since that fine school was instituted.

For nearly half a century she has taken the children of Boston up "the right path of virtuous, noble education" described by Milton and shown them the fields of opportunity.

It is said of Miss Lawrence that her tutoring has been exceptional and the discipline she maintained was most effective, because it has been happy and joyous. "Her pupils took delight in following her lead."

She has trained a regiment of Boston children. The example of her influence has been felt by a number that would equal an army corps. And more important than an army. They are fighting the daily struggles of life under her early influence and inspiration.

Give us good teachers to mould our children in their plastic years; give us good school buildings in which they can derive education under healthful conditions and the future of our country is secure.

MISS LAWRENCE

Miss Lawrence is deserving of the testimonial dinner at which her former students will honer her on May 18th in anticipation of her retirement. May she in her future years be blessed with a measure of the contentment she has brought to others in her long service to her native city.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

Romance in the Tenderloin

NEW YORK, May 6—Nicholas Dondolis threads a sheen of romanticism into the passionately sordid Tenderloin crazy quilt. As Nick the Greek he specializes in wagering a fortune on the flip of a card or turn of the dice. He furthermore has the languor of beauty, a rather baffling aristocrapensee.

No wager is too big for him. He takes on all comers with a quick wry smile and is the only man who got the figurative goat of the late Arnold Rothstein. Rothstein matched coolness in high stakes with Nick several times and upon each occasion lost heavily.

Nick's home is where he pegs his hat. Legends are that most of his high stake clean ups are made in the west and that in New York he is always the heavy loser — the sucker. Like Richard Canfield with his collection of Whistlers, Nick has an esthetic flair.

* * *

He is a patron of the galleries and museums and is reputed an expert of Watteaus and Corots. His native city is Athens in Greece and he came from a high-nosed Grecian family of ancient lineage, wealthy in his own right with an allowance of more than $100,000 yearly.

* * *

He was graduated from a college in Greece and was on his way for a post graduate course at Oxford when one of his whims turned him to America. That was some 20 years ago. He idled around the race tracks for a time, but this sort of wagering was too slow.

* * *

While a smart dresser, his habiliments are far from flashy. He wears no jewelry and his suits are sedate. The only touch of dandyism, outside of a glossy fixative on his hair, is in his patent leather shoes which he wears at all times. An accomplished linguist, he speaks French, German, Greek and English.

* * *

Making friends easily but with no intimates, he is the pale and bland lone wolf, whose veins seem to run with the ichor of ghosts. No one knows how much he has won or lost. He has a shrug for such queries. But best information is that he is generally loser.

* * *

Celebrities sign personal letters in characteristic ways—often amusing, but usually expressive. Homer Croy's is "Your's until Shaw smacks Barrie." A few are sweetly expressive, such as Meredith Nicholson's "Love and kisses" and Carl Brandt's "Bless You." Karl Harriman closes with "Ever Thine" and the late H. H. Tammen with "Love and good cheer." George Nathan's is "Yours." Paul Whiteman's "Skiddle-de-scow," Roy Howard's "Faithfully," Sinclair Lewis' "To an Eyelash!" Eugene O'Neil's "The usual bilge," Gene Tunney's "Always," Ted Cook's "Felicitations and all that," and Joe Cook's "Keeping fairly cool."

* * *

They were telling Oliver Herford about a new cure for stammering. "They will keep on," he snorted, "until everybody talks alike."

* * *

The Boston just came running sidewise into the workshop with a rubber ball in his mouth. I pretended to throw an imaginary ball into the other room and he is now in there looking for it when all the time it is in his mouth. That is what is going on with most of us, running around crazily looking for prosperity. It is right under our noses, O. well, maybe not so all of the berries as that, but there might be an idea there. Anyway, I have the hiccups and can't be bothered with technicalities.

* * *

Perhaps I could write a philosophic paragraph about hiccups. For instance, you expect each one to be the last and rarely bother about the next. That is the way—there goes a beaut!—with panics. Incidentally, a true only stage drunk I ever knew to make a hiccup sound real is James Barton. There, men, is an old time ankle-deep hiccuper!

* * *

A sudden shower sicstaed me along with other passersby in that little theatrical cul de sac known as Shubert Alley the other afternoon. Snuggled under dripping eaves was a brightly rouged chorine. "I've used to a gang like this," she cracked. "Everybody's all wet."
